

Burch Declares Torn Telegram Is To Blame

Man Held for Murder of John Kennedy Insists That He is Innocent

FACES TRIAL ON TUESDAY

Talking Through Bars, Burch Says Madalynne Obenchain Had No Part in Shooting

By Frank H. Bartholomew
By United Press Leased Wire
Los Angeles, Calif. — Arthur C. Burch, the enigmatic figure in the Kennedy murder case, broke his silence Friday for the first time since the tragedy and told the United Press the story he will relate from the witness stand next Tuesday, when he goes on trial for his life.

"I never saw John Bolton Kennedy in my life," Burch asserted. "I am in jail and under indictment for his murder because I threw part of a torn telegraph blank in a waste paper basket in my room at the Russell hotel."

"They charge that this telegram was from Madalynne Obenchain, telling me to come to Los Angeles from Illinois. That is absurd. It was a message from my business partner. I will prove it."

Took Cheap Hotel
"Why did you select the Russell hotel, directly across the street from Kennedy's office, for your stay in Los Angeles?" Burch was asked. "Limited finances, I guess," he said.

"What trick of fate led me there, I do not know. But I figured it as the cheapest hotel close to the business district."

"Did you know it overlooked Kennedy's suite of offices?" he was asked. "Yes," he said. "At least I found it out after I had moved into the hotel."

Burch, bespectacled, baldheaded, cheerful, does not appear worried by the fact that on Tuesday he will face a jury, charged with shooting young Kennedy to death because both loved Madalynne Obenchain.

"It all happened because I happened to be in Los Angeles because I happened to be a friend of Madalynne Obenchain and because I happened to register at the Russell hotel, across from Kennedy's brokerage offices. Just a grim trick of fate!"

Believes Madalynne Innocent
"I believe Madalynne is as innocent as I am of any knowledge of this crime."

"I believe she does not know who the two men were out at Beverly Glen on the night that Kennedy was shot. I believe she saw two men, but their identity is as mysterious as that of the two who attacked and thrashed Kennedy several years ago."

"No one ever knew who gave him that thrashing. No one was prosecuted. Robbery was not the motive, for nothing was stolen from Kennedy."

"Madalynne Obenchain is a good, pure, sweet girl. She stands head and shoulders above any man or woman I ever met for intelligence. She is capable of meeting any situation—even this."

"Her friendship has been an inspiration to me, but has been a purely platonic friendship from the start. I do not love Madalynne."

"I'm in love with the girl I married—the mother of my baby son."

COURT CASE MAY SMASH MINE UNION

West Virginia Operators Want to Stop "Check-off" Dues Paying System

By United Press Leased Wire
Indianapolis, Ind. — The United Mine Workers of America, one of the largest individual labor organizations in the world, went on trial for its life Friday.

Federal Judge A. B. Anderson began hearing on a suit for injunction filed by 63 West Virginia mining corporations seeking to dissolve the union by restraining the collection of dues by check-off "for any purpose whatsoever" from its half million members.

Attorneys for the miners were expected to file several motions against the suit, among which was one for dismissal.

The Borderland Coal company and 62 other companies of West Virginia charge the "check-off" system by which the union dues are taken from the miners' wages is illegal.

Officials of the miners union said if the injunction is granted it will break down the administrative forces of the union and the Association of Operators in the central competitive field, comprising Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania. Several Indiana operators are named as defendants in the suit against the "check-off" system.

The West Virginia firms filed the suit as a step to prevent unionization of the Mingo mine war area—the last stronghold of the open shop in the American coal industry. The labor troubles in the Mingo region are told in the bill and are said to have resulted from a conspiracy of the miners and operators of the central competitive field to organize the disputed territory.

INDIANA OFFICIAL IS FOUND DEAD IN BED

Washington — General John J. Pershing and Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, chief of naval operations, probably will be the principal army and navy advisers to the American delegation to the arms limitation conference, it was learned Friday.

Club Women Hope To End Drive Today

Subscription of One-Third of Budget is Reported at End of First Day—Businessmen are Rallying to Support of Club.

Although only one-third of the budget sought by Appleton Womens club was reported by workers at the end of their first day's campaign at the supper conference Thursday night, the campaigners showed no signs of discouragement and started out Friday morning determined to wind up the campaign today with an oversubscription. Friday night campaigners reported collections of $1,645.55 in cash and $502.30 in pledges. A total of $665 in membership fees has been collected, making a total of $2,813.85. The goal is 1,500 members and a $10,000 budget.

The second ward team reported 102 memberships in the first day's drive, the best report of the evening. Other teams reported as follows: First ward, 73; Third ward, 15; Fourth ward, 18; Fifth ward, 13; Sixth ward, 41; Girls, 33, making a total of 313. This is in addition to a large number who had enrolled before the drive started. Another supper meeting is to be held at 6 o'clock Friday evening in the club room to hear final reports. Women were filled with enthusiasm after last night's meeting and are expecting to "go over the top" in the drive today.

Women are emphasizing the small cost of the campaign. They believe the drive will be conducted at an expense of less than 1 per cent of collections while in many campaigns the expense is as high as 30 per cent.

Businessmen generally are giving liberally to the budget. One man gave five times the sum suggested as a reasonable payment, declaring the work of the club justified donations of that size.

There is grave danger that the work of the club among the women and girls of the city will be seriously hampered unless Appleton people respond readily in this campaign, leaders said. Considerable money is needed to carry on the work and some of the activities must be sacrificed if the money is not forthcoming.

JEALOUS LOVER KILLS FINANCEE; WOUNDS RIVAL

La Crosse.—Miss Cecil Kerstein died here Thursday night as the result of gunshot wounds said to have been inflicted by her former sweetheart, Peter Kleiow Wednesday night. Harvey Sass, suitor of Miss Kerstein, was also seriously wounded.

The shooting was said to have been the result of the engagement between Kleiow and Miss Kerstein, having been broken off after the girl had received the attentions of Sass, who was calling on the girl at the time of the shooting.

INCENDIARY BLAZE PUTS LIVES OF 18 IN DANGER

By United Press Leased Wire
Milwaukee — Another incendiary blaze, the fourth reported here recently, imperiled the lives of 18 roomers in a rooming house here early Friday morning.

Quick action on the part of the firemen probably saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Max Adler, who were trapped in a smoke filled room. Passersby noticed the smoke pouring out of the windows and spread the alarm, causing a panic among the women in the building.

Three Testify About Old Ailment Of Miss Rappe

Chicago.—Virginia Rappe, movie actress for whom murder Rescoe (Fatty) Arbuckle is held, suffered with a chronic bladder disease nine years ago, a doctor and two nurses swore in the district attorney's office here Friday.

Miss Rappe's ailment could easily result seriously the three swore. The testimony was taken by Frank Peska, assistant state's attorney. Formal depositions will be taken late Friday when Arbuckle's attorneys arrive from San Francisco.

Those who gave the testimony were: Miss Josephine Roth, Chicago nurse; Miss Virginia Warren, Chicago nurse, and Dr. Maurice Rosenberg.

DEMOCRATS SPY ON EACH OTHER TO ARM FOR TUESDAY MEET

Cox and McAdoo Forces Expected to Bring Storm Down Upon White's Head

Washington.—An armed truce appeared to exist Friday between the Cox and the McAdoo forces on the Democratic national committee as both sides tried to learn the other's plans for the meeting of the committee at St. Louis next Tuesday.

"We won't start anything if they don't," said Senator Pat Harrison of the Cox forces Friday.

The McAdoo group declined to give the slightest inkling of plans. Friends of Chairman George White, Cox leader, have been trying for some days to get reliable information as to whether Thomas B. Love of Texas, Robert Wooley and Daniel G. Roper, former internal revenue commissioner under McAdoo, have any unrevealed moves up their sleeves.

Meanwhile White, around whom the storm, if there is a storm, will break, has been preparing a careful report, diplomatically but effectively making clear that his work is incomplete, his responsibilities not entirely discharged.

Some influential Democrats not on the national committee have been urging McAdoo's men not to raise the issue of ousting White at this time.

Gov. Cox has said nothing and intends to keep out of party affairs for the present.

SEEK BOARDER FOR MURDER OF PRIEST

Bloodhounds Fail to Track Asailant of Pastor Lured to His Death

Lead, S. D.—"We expect to arrest the murderer of Father A. B. Eklund shortly," Sheriff Lucey said at noon Friday. County Attorney Fowler made the statement. He said the name of the murderer was known, but it could not be announced.

Earlier in the day it was stated authorities were seeking Andrew Orlando, who disappeared from his boarding house 15 hours after the murder.

Bloodhounds brought here from Lincoln failed to trace the murderer of the priest, but Sheriff Lucey said they might be tried again. On the first trial they followed a trail to the home of Tony Bartolino, who was said to be the first man on the scene after the fatal shot was fired.

Father Eklund was shot down at 3:30 Wednesday morning after he had been called from his bed on pretense of administering last rites of the church to a dying man. The murderer led him to the west end of town and after striking him down fired several shots, one of which penetrated his heart.

WHY CARL TRIED COMEBACK

Ex-King Carl tried the second time to regain the Hungarian throne because he thought the people of Hungary were unanimous in demanding him as king. Ambitious advisors did all they could to strengthen this belief. This picture of General Hagedues was taken while the Carlst coup was being hatched. Royalist sympathizers hoisted him to their shoulders, like a hero, when he shouted that the restoration was at hand.

Sponge Squad Efforts In Wet Chicago Merely Scraiching Surface

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Drinks masquerading under titles of "beer" and "bourbon" could be purchased freely in Chicago Friday.

How near they came to measuring up to standards in ingredients and tastes, was a matter of opinion.

The vendor usually claimed they were the real stuff, while the purchaser usually found them real only so far as they carried a wallop.

Liquor of some sort could be purchased in practically every block in downtown Chicago. It was generally sold openly and over the bar in saloons.

Delicatessen stores, tailor shops and other establishments' handed it on the side. In nearly every large building, there was some office where liquor could be purchased.

Bourbon, carrying the old time labels, but lacking the old time taste, could be purchased for $6 a pint. Bought by the drink in cafes, the charge was, usually, 31 for a teacup half-filled.

Three thousand arrests for alleged violation of the prohibition laws have been made in Chicago since the law became effective. Only about one third of these have come to trial. The average penalty for those found guilty was a fine of $25.

It costs the government approximately $300 to prosecute a liquor case.

Sixty-four agents are now working in the Chicago district in an effort to stop liquor law violations. Four assistant United States district attorneys are devoting practically all of their time to liquor cases.

"Beer being sold in Chicago is adulterated with ether," John Kjellander, prohibition enforcement officer for the Great Lakes district told the United Press Friday. "It contains less than half of one per cent of alcohol."

"The whisky being sold is watered and also diluted with ether."

WANTS SHOWDOWN ON IRISH ISSUE

By Ed. L. Keen
By United Press Leased Wire
London.—Lloyd George Friday marshaled the government forces for a showdown on the Irish issue in commons next Monday.

The next British-Irish conference on peace will be held probably Tuesday. It was learned authoritatively.

The "die hards" of the conservative party announced their intention of challenging the government's conduct of the Irish negotiations in a debate. The prime minister has accepted the challenge and will consider the motion for debate as one calling for a vote of censure. He will stake his government on the question.

The Irish conference itself remained in committee stage. George, Birkenhead, Griffith and Collins apparently being unable to agree upon a formula that would permit the conference proper to resume its sessions.

POSTOFFICE OFFICIALS HURT IN RAIL WRECK

By United Press Leased Wire
New York.—Postmaster General Hays and a score of other passengers were slightly injured early Friday when the Washington bound midnight express on the Pennsylvania railroad crashed into the rear end of a Long Beach local at Manhattan Transfer, New Jersey. The accident was due to a heavy fog.

Hays who had come here to investigate the $1,500,000 mail robbery, was thrown from his berth and in addition to shocks suffered strained muscles.

R. S. Simmons, chief inspector of the postoffice department and Dr. Lee K. Krankel, director of the department's welfare division, also were slightly injured.

SENATE MUST VOTE ON SOLDIER BONUS

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington — The soldiers bonus bill, as reported favorably to the senate and subsequently recommended to the finance committee at the request of President Harding, was offered as an amendment to the pending compromise tax bill in the senate Friday by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri.

The movement of Reed will force the senate to take a direct vote on the question of awarding adjusted compensation to the veterans of the world war.

No previous vote has been taken on the question.

GOPHER SQUAD IN STATE FOR BATTLE TOMORROW

Milwaukee—"Doc" Williams and his Gopher squad arrived here Friday all primed for the battle Saturday with Wisconsin at Madison. Williams, when asked whether Oss would play, stated he would answer that question Saturday. They went through some light signal drills and are in the best of condition for the contest. They leave for Madison Saturday morning.

U. S. Victory In Averting Rail Strike Brings Move To Prevent Future Crises

TEARS AND HATRED SHOWED WHICH WIFE HE OUGHT TO KEEP

By United Press Leased Wire
Milwaukee.—The two wives of Hobson Reese, 25, war veteran, met in the district attorney's office here Friday morning, one weeping and wailing and the other glad to get rid of him. Reese is being held by the police on a statutory charge. He is alleged to have been married before the war, having two children by his first wife. A week ago he was married again and an investigation was started by the first wife which resulted in the meeting of the two this morning.

PULLED BACHELOR'S LEG FOR $359; NOW SLEUTH PULLED HER

Farco, N. D.—Marian Victor, 24, will be brought here from New York to stand trial on a charge of using the mails to defraud. District Attorney Mildreth said Friday. The girl is accused of having defrauded an Edgerly, N. D., bachelor, 48 years old, out of $359 after promising to marry him. They met in Milwaukee and were betrothed he charged. After he returned home she got money through letters, he said. The bachelor is en route to New York as a witness in a preliminary hearing she demanded.

Five Big Brotherhoods, After Long Conference, Bow to Rail Board Edict

NO FURTHER WAGE CUTS

By Herbert W. Walker
By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—With a general railroad strike averted after it threatened the country for two weeks, a general movement was started in congress Friday to make such a situation impossible in the future.

The chief means to this end will be to put "teeth" in the Esch-Cummins railroad law by making decisions of the railway labor board mandatory on both the carriers and the employees.

Meanwhile, more freight rate reductions are expected to be announced soon by the interstate commerce commission as the result of the cancellation of the strike call. The administration had decided it would not be coerced into certain steps, previously contemplated by the strike situation. Cuts in the rates on lumber and on fruits and vegetables from the Pacific coast have been virtually agreed upon.

By Carl Victor Little
Chicago.—The October 30 railroad strike order was cancelled Friday.

News that the five big brotherhoods had bowed to the authority of the government, as represented by the United States railroad board, was transmitted to 400,000 workers of the transportation group of rail employees.

Brotherhood chiefs, in a conference that lasted all day and far into the night, decided to rescind the order for a strike which was to start at 5:30 Sunday morning.

The basis of the settlement follows: 1. No Wages Cut Now.

1. Brotherhoods accept the assurance of the railroad board that no "settlement" for cuts in wages, presented by carriers, will be considered until decisions are reached on rules and working conditions. This is taken to mean there will be no wage cut on the roads for a year.

2. Railroad executives have promised not to act arbitrarily in matters of wages and working conditions but to submit all matters to the railroad board.

To Ben Hooper, President Harding's spokesman, after he had heard Hooper, Hooper appeared as an "invited guest" before the brotherhoods and their executive committees. He warned threatened, promised and won the leaders who had been determined the strike would go on.

The resolution passed by the board several days ago which stated there would be no consideration of wage cuts until working agreements were passed upon was the basis of settlement Hooper offered.

Lee Advocated Peace
William G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, was the peace advocate in the brotherhood meeting. Lee stood out alone for peace, after he had heard Hooper, and convinced others of the wisdom of calling off the strike.

The trainmen, engineers and conductors voted for peace at midnight. The firemen voted against it. The switchmen, headed by T. C. Cashen, did not vote as the matter had been settled before their ballots were marked.

No claim of victory was made by either the brotherhood chiefs or the railroad executives Friday.

The men voted to strike against the July 1 pay cut of $400,000,000 ordered by the railroad board. But leaders, following the vote, stated there would be no strike unless wages were trimmed again. A resolution passed by the executives stating they were about to petition for another reduction, precipitated the crisis.

The telegraphers, the only union to join with the brotherhoods in the strike order, also cancelled their plans. The railroad department of the American Federation of Labor—a million members strong—refused to support the brotherhoods.

It is believed that preparations of the government to prevent a tieup of transportation were to a degree responsible for cancellation of the strike order.

May Break Democrat Hold On Solid South

Harding's Birmingham Speech Keeps Parties Guessing as to Outcome—Believe It Part of G. O. P. Campaign to Win South.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington. — President Harding's speech at Birmingham, Alabama, advocating political and economic equality for the negro was the "talk of the town" Thursday.

Southern democrats privately denounced it and predicted that the hopes of the Republican party for a "white Republican vote" had been absolutely dashed to the ground. Republicans commended the utterance as a Lincolnian speech. They called it a courageous speech delivered as it was in the heart of the south itself.

Irrespective of the merits of Mr. Harding's doctrine, there are certain interesting aspects to it from a political viewpoint. Republican candidates have in the past spoken of political equality in their campaign speeches without creating much of a ripple.

Mr. Harding said virtually the same thing in his presidential campaign, as he said at Birmingham—it pleased the negro voters and was hardly commented upon at the time. But as president no one has gone quite as far in recent years in handling the negro problem as has Mr. Harding. Theoretically, Republicans and Democrats have admitted upon occasions that true democracy means political equality but in actual practice both parties have had their controversies about granting that equality.

Would Break Hold
For several months the leaders of the Republican party have been planning a real campaign to break the Democratic hold on the "solid south."

Some have advocated that the way to do it is for some statement to be made which would assure the whites in the south that they could vote the Republican ticket without fear of negro domination. This has indeed been advocated by those Republicans who hailed from the south and who knew that some such utterance was necessary before the whites could be persuaded to desert the Democratic standard.

On the other hand, northern Republicans who have been helped in recent years by the influx of negroes into their congressional districts have feared a statement of this nature would be regarded as hostile by northern negroes.

Mr. Harding has tried a compromise. He declares he does not believe in social or racial equality. That's an important statement for a president of the United States to make. But while the south has always insisted upon its own right to determine who shall or shall not be considered social equals, the trouble is that the true fear of political equality is that it may lead to social equality. At least the southern Democrats here who have made a study of the question declare that the line between political and social equality is too hazy to draw.

They argue, moreover, that political equality means the election to office of negroes to rule over whites. Such a status they said, inevitably carries with it social friction.

Republicans who defended Mr. Harding's speech were vehement in their expressions of approval, pointing out that the president had made a real appeal for a united nation and had not minced words in contending for a genuine and not an imaginary democracy.

The fact that the negroes in the audience had applauded and cheered while whites stood silent, as reported in the dispatches from Birmingham, was regarded as of lesser importance than the after-effects of the speech on the mass of people who read and did not hear the utterance. One thing is certain, Mr. Harding has said something that is bound to be the basis for discussion. Indeed, it would not be surprising if the speech were answered in congress by the southern Democrats.

FOCH GETS OVATION AS HE SETS FOOT ON AMERICAN SOIL

Hero of World War is on Way to American Legion Convention in Kansas City

By United Press Leased Wire
New York — With shrieking sirens, booming cannon and wave after wave of cheers, America Friday welcomed Ferdinand Foch, marshal of France.

The great military leader, enroute to attend the American legion convention at Kansas City, Mo., arrived Friday afternoon aboard the French liner Paris and landed at the Battery.

Lower Broadway, from the Battery to City Hall park, the historic route followed by all distinguished visitors was walled with cheering, hat and flag waving thousands whose vocal greeting to the man whose strategy beat the Germans, echoed and reverberated through the canyon of skyscrapers. Miles of ticker tape showered down from brokers' windows. Torn paper fluttered down like a veritable snowstorm.

Foch's welcome was that of a conqueror.

General Pershing, who arrived on the George Washington from Europe shortly before Foch, preceded him to the Battery and welcomed him when he technically set foot on American soil by stepping from the tug Vigilant to pier A.

Aboard the boat which met Foch were Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., assistant secretary of the navy; Gen. W. D. Connor; Jules Jusserand, French ambassador; Gaston Liebert, French consul general; and Lieutenant Louis Van Eecke of the French Veterans' association.

"It is a very great satisfaction for me to come here again, again my American brothers in arms."

"These soldiers whom I had the honor to lead in 1918 on the battlefields of France, brave and gallant in the performance of the duties of war, I am now to have the deep pleasure to see displaying in the work of peace the same qualities which made their strength and glory throughout the war."

WON'T COME BACK FOR CO-OP HEARING

Chicago.—Hearing on the bankruptcy proceedings against the Cooperative Society of America was postponed for one week when called Friday because of the continued absence of Mrs. Edith Parker, wife of the president of the company.

Mrs. Parker's cousin, C. C. Higgins, who is also scheduled to be examined, also failed to appear. Both were interested in financing the company, and the Great Western Securities concern, a subsidiary.

Attorneys for Mr. Parker said they had received messages from her from Toronto in which she declared she was unwilling to return for the hearing.

Court Orders Stay of Proceedings in Fremont-St. Condemnation Case

Papers were filed in circuit court Thursday by Theodore Berg, city attorney, asking that a new trial be granted on the petition of the common council to institute condemnation proceedings to open up Fremont-st. east to Lake-st. Judge E. V. Werner ordered all proceedings stayed until further notice so as to give him opportunity to go over the request for the new trial.

With all the necessary property obtained by gift or satisfactory price by the city except a parcel of 900 feet owned by one man, residents of the Fourth ward were denied their request to obtain this tract and open the street by a jury last week. A central roadway convenient to schools and the hospital is desired by those living west of Lake-st.

Don't Delay Questions; "Wizard" Will Be Busy

Have you any little worries in your home?

Does trouble ever trouble you? Are there questions about the past, present, or future like to have answered? Do voices of the occult, whether credulous or skeptical, may have those worries, those questions answered.

The Post-Crescent has arranged with Richards, styled "The Wizard," to answer the questions for you. Richards is billed as America's greatest magician and mind reader. He brings his big show to the Appleton Theatre for one week, starting Monday Oct. 31, and will answer any question you may care to submit to him through The Post-Crescent. Richards has a large production, carrying a carload of scenery and effects, and an excellent company.

If you want to know if your lover is true to you or what will be the price of eggs next week, or whether your wife's mother's great aunt Sarah is going to leave you her money, or anything else under the sun, just write this puzzling question, seal it in an envelope and send it to Richards "The Wizard," care The Post-Crescent.

Just write and seal your question at home or in the office, sign your full correct name and address and mail it. Only your initials will be used in the answer the first of which will appear in The Post-Crescent Tuesday. Send your question right now, as only a limited number will be published each day in the order they are received, and no one but Richards will see your question, which will be kept under lock and key at The Post-Crescent office.

During his engagement Richards will grant no private interviews or audiences, as this is in accordance with his contract with the manager of the Appleton theatre and The Post-Crescent. There are only two places where you can submit your queries to the crystal seer—during his regular entertainment at the theatre, or through the columns of The Post-Crescent.

HEARINGS IN SIX INJURY CASES

Industrial Commission Takes Testimony in Requests for Damages

Hearings under the workmen's compensation act were held in the courthouse here Thursday afternoon and Friday morning before Voyta Wrabetz, examiner, and B. C. Cover, reporter for the Wisconsin Industrial commission.

In the case of John Kapitke vs. Max Dieck, the former was asking for damages as a result of an accident while he was threshing for Dieck. The question as to whether the man was permanently disabled will be decided by the commission.

In the case of Floyd F. Day vs. John Strange Paper Co. Day injured his knee while at work for the company and a disease set in the bone making amputation necessary. The question is to prove that there was a disease of the bone previous to amputation.

In the case of John Priebe vs. Eagle Manufacturing Co. Priebe asked increased compensation, claiming the machine which caused the loss of his thumb was not sufficiently guarded. This company maintained he did not make use of the guards.

In the case of George Hartzheim vs. Combined Locks Paper Co. Hartzheim claims that as a result of a jump from a paper machine to the floor he suffered a rupture of the muscles of his neck. Evidence was not completed and further hearing will be held in Green Bay.

In the case of A. H. Gebholm vs. Riverside Fiber and Paper Co., the complainant alleged he ran a sliver in his hand and infection resulted. A question of disability will be decided by the commission.

In the case of Harry Barjels vs. Combined Locks Paper Co., Barjels claims his arm came in contact with a hot roller and was burned. He claimed disability.

J. H. Langenberg Tells Reporter
About Appleton's Night School 50 Years Ago

"Students were required to furnish their own lamps, books, paper, penholders and ink," said J. H. Langenberg in recalling the first evening school in Appleton. "It was conducted in Lawrence college 50 years ago," he said, "and the late Prof. O. P. DeLand had charge of it. About 80 students were enrolled."

The school was located on the first floor, north side, immediately east of the main entrance. Mr. Langenberg's bench was close to the first window east of the entrance and even now, he said, he never passes that window without recalling his early experiences in this country.

While he had a good training in German he was unable to speak English when he came to Appleton but was not here long before he could make himself understood. He was anxious to take a commercial course during his spare time and enrolled as a student.

His English was so defective that it was with difficulty he made Prof. DeLand understand he wanted to take up bookkeeping with other studies and the first thing the instructor did was to have him write the English alphabet. His only error was in making the letter "S" and this he corrected before Prof. DeLand had time to show him.

The students, who made no effort to restrain their laughter at his broken English, sat up and took notice when he was instructed to write a note for $1,000 bearing 10 per cent interest which he did without error in a fine Spencerian hand.

Prof. DeLand informed him he was qualified to enter the class and instructed him as to the articles needed. He was unable to grasp them all and the professor consented to make the purchases for him.

Mr. Langenberg's greatest trouble was in writing numbers, his tendency being to get the figures reversed. In an addition test which he hesitated entering he was the second to announce his answer after the figures had been read to the class and his attempt to read it was greeted with laughter. Only two correct answers were read and his was one of them.

By diligent application he soon reached second position in his class and had the distinction of occupying the second bench from the instructor's desk. The first position was held by the late Joseph Roemer. Mr. Langenberg said he still has his lamp and other school equipment.

DOONAN SAYS HE ACHED ALL OVER

Lost Lots of Time Because Of Rheumatism But Hasn't a Sign of It Left Now

"Tanlac set me right three years ago and did such a good job of it that I am still feeling fine," said Elmer L. Doonan, 5218 Hamilton Ave., Detroit, Mich., a valued employee of the Hudson Motor Car Co.

"Before I took Tanlac I ached and pained all over with rheumatism. I had it so bad in my right arm that I was laid up for a whole week at one time. I was also bothered a lot with stomach trouble and indigestion. My appetite was very poor. I never slept well, and got up mornings more tired than on going to bed. My energy all seemed to leave me and I was easily tired out."

"My wife had been keeping up with the Tanlac testimonials and bought me two bottles of the medicine. These did me so much good that I kept right on until I had taken six and then I was in fine shape. The rheumatism vanished, my appetite came back, and all signs of indigestion left me, and I am feeling as well today as I could ask to feel. I don't believe anybody troubled like I was can take Tanlac without being helped."

Tanlac is sold in Appleton by Voigt Drug Co. and by leading druggists everywhere.

WHAT THE PEOPLE CAN DO

The decline of our foreign trade and reduced domestic consumption of manufactures and luxuries may be attributed primarily to excessive taxation and to the exhaustion of capital and credit. That is the view of American businessmen all over the country, and we think it is the correct view. There can be no relief from taxation so long as the government spends four billion dollars annually, and there can be no reduction of taxes so long as the present armament program is continued. Not only does the hope of the world-for-peace, but for substantial recovery from its economic ills as well, depend upon the success of the conference for the limitation of armament.

Nearly twenty-five years ago, at the first Hague conference, a concerted effort was made to stop the growth of armament. The attempt was unsuccessful, the rivalry continued, military and naval budgets grew year by year. Ever-increasing taxes were imposed to provide for great military establishments, all of which was unproductive expenditure. Suspicion and enmities grew with these great war preparations, and in 1914 the explosion came. It was a "war to end war" but it left the burden of armaments more staggering than ever. In some countries paper money has become worthless, investments have been confiscated, credit has disappeared and trade is at a standstill.

The United States has not been spared the effects of this ruinous policy. Heavy taxation for unproductive purposes has restricted consumption. After the tax gatherer takes his toll there is little left to spend. Our foreign trade is on a toboggan slide. That business in 1920 was worth $8,000,000,000, and more than half went to Europe. It is estimated that a reduction of naval and military expenditures by even one-half would set free probably not less than $4,000,000,000 annually for trade. It is inevitable that with this large increment for productive enterprise credit would revive with an increasing sense of security.

If the armament rivalry continues, it can only lead to further confiscation of wealth, and the nations that were victorious in the war will share the financial ruin of those which were defeated. In addition we shall most certainly be laying the foundations for "the next World war," which Gen. Ludendorff in his new book is picturing to Germany in an effort to rouse it to the possibilities of a second stroke for world supremacy.

The whole world, including the United States, is staggering under the armament load. There can be no satisfactory recovery from the present depression unless this burden is substantially diminished. Chambers of commerce throughout the United States are adopting resolutions calling upon the administration to use every influence at its command to bring about a drastic reduction of naval and military expenditures at the conference. The business men of Great Britain and Japan are taking the same steps in those countries. Great political forces are arrayed against them in all countries. The same and intelligent voice of America must be raised in behalf of a reduction of armaments or they will not be reduced. Now is the time for the people of the United States to make their wishes known and the power of their opinion felt. Every city and town in the country should through its commercial or other organizations adopt resolutions demanding that the conference put an end to the race for military supremacy by reducing armaments forthwith. Appleton should join in this great movement.

HOME BUILDING ON A LARGE SCALE NEXT YEAR

News from cities, towns and villages in many states seems to warrant hope that building of homes will be started generally next spring. Local associations are being formed in numerous places, and realtors and contractors announce their intention to build houses and sell them at reasonable terms. Once the home-building and home-owning movements get under headway, it will not be long before the housing shortage is overcome. Dissatisfaction with high rents and unpleasantness of tenancy are incentives which will induce families to own their abodes.

There is now a set of most convincing talking-points to encourage home ownership. Renters have learned that it is neither cheaper nor so agreeable to pay rent, and that they can save money and live more comfortably and independently in their own dwellings. Home-owning is one of the best methods of saving money. It is economical. And members of a family always take more interest in their home, and feel more self-assured, more confident and more respectable than in a rented house.

Heretofore, there has prevailed an idea that it was hardly worth while to invest money in a house. Now that there is a different point of view, home-ownership propaganda should be more vigorous. And it is quite important that, when dwellings are purchased on a partial payment plan, the installments themselves should be made low enough to be strong inducements. The problem with many who would like to own homes is the first payment. It should be made as small as possible, and the installment period prolonged.

IS THE OLD SPIRIT OF PATRIOTISM EXTINCT?

Sometimes it appears as if there is a cardinal difference between the Americanism of Valley Forge, Saratoga and Yorktown and the patriotic impulses which actuate us in relation to the World war and progressive sociological disturbances. If there is a difference, it would profit us to look back to the initial struggle for independence and contemplate the spirit and sacrifices of the men who formed this republic and built the structure on which modern democracy rests.

The immediate issues concerned in the revolt against tyranny and the establishment of representative government were simple and definite. The problems of the present time are so complicated and interwoven that fundamentals are not always perceptible. Does the contrast between simplicity and complexity create an illusory difference between the early and present manifestations of patriotism? Or is it possible that we imagine that we have gone far beyond the principles of Washington, Marshall, Jefferson, Hamilton, and believe that those ideals are inapplicable to the conditions of today?

Commemorating the surrender of Cornwallis to Washington at Yorktown revived our memories of the triumph which achieved American independence. It would be to our advantage to commemorate Valley Forge and Saratoga, and to think of the patriots who risked life and property to realize their ideals. We think so much of our pending difficulties that the Revolutionary war impresses us as being far away, and the founders of the republic as figures whose purposes were achieved long, long ago.

The same principles which were established by Valley Forge, Saratoga and Yorktown are operating in our complex civilization, and the present issues are just as simple at bottom as those were. There is too much selfishness in the consideration of the large problems of today. In fact, it is selfishness that tends to complicate modern problems. Valley Forge, Saratoga and Yorktown teach us singleness of purpose and sincerity of patriotism. We will have stronger faith in ourselves and in democracy if we will study the men and issues of the war for independence. We must follow the same principles and ideals.

A JEWISH AMBASSADOR

President Harding's appointment of Louis Einstein of New York, as American ambassador to Czechoslovakia is a very important thing even for American Jews since it is a new departure in American politics. America has on several occasions sent Jews as ambassadors to the Mohammedan Turkey. However, were always sent to Mohammedan Turkey, while Christian Europe has not as yet had a Jewish ambassador from America.

This was not due to the fact that previous administrations in Washington were not willing to send Jews as ambassadors to Christian Europe, but because Christian Europe implied its preference for Christian ambassadors.

The situation has changed. The political status of the Jewish people in Europe has assumed a new aspect. Organized governments have awakened to the realization that they must reckon with the Jewish populations in their respective countries. The war has brought about some very astounding changes. Liberalism, democracy and minority rights are more evident; tolerance more apparent.

In diplomacy it is customary not to send ambassadors without first obtaining the approval of the country to which they are appointed. It is, therefore, doubly pleasing that Czechoslovakia expressed her acceptance to President Harding's choice.

THE PROSPECTIVE MOTHER'S TEETH

The young expectant mother deserves a great deal of sympathy, because it is only natural for her to seek information from more experienced mothers who know so many things that are not so. It is human nature to assume wisdom which you have not. Don't I know? So if we add what these older hands at the game assume with what they know that is not so, the poor unsophisticated amateur is pretty sure to get an awful misinformation.

One of the wickedest of the many wicked superstitions bandied about from mothers of experience to expectant mothers is that there is some risk, some evil influence attached to dental work in the period of expectancy. In some instances there seems to be a marked disturbance in the nutrition of the teeth in pregnancy, and this faulty nutrition favors rapid decay or caries. Hence it is all the more important for the well being and comfort of the expectant mother that the teeth should be promptly repaired by the dentist, and that means any and all dental repairs which may be essential to preserve the teeth.

If extraction of one or more teeth is necessary in the judgment of a competent dentist—not the bargain counter dentist, but one your physician can recommend—then the mother to be should by all means have the teeth extracted, with the aid of local or general anæsthetic, as her physician may advise. Let her turn a deaf ear to the gratuitously expressed dangers of this procedure, for there are no dangers except in the imagination of ignorant, superstitious old women of both sexes. The dangers are just as great as in the danger of waiting until a house where some one is ill of smallpox or diphtheria, a danger imagined only by uneducated persons.

It is for the expectant mother's own welfare, as well as that of her child, that she should never neglect any cavities in her teeth during the period of expectancy.

Mrs. K. was more than a mother, she was an expectant mother. One day she had a toothache. Her doctor, who was fond of Mrs. K.'s little boy, happened along. He examined the tooth, which was "ulcerated"—that is, there was a point up pus at the root, requiring for extraction. He urged immediate extraction, the safest treatment in so called "ulcerated tooth" always. Mrs. K. promised to go at once to her dentist. But along came a neighborhood gossip who stood aghast at the very idea of having an ulcerated tooth pulled, and in Mrs. K.'s condition, of all things. Well, the gossip frightened the unfortunate woman out of it. A few days later Mrs. K. developed sore "kernels" under the jaw.

The gossip dropped in and pressed upon her the fact that Mrs. K. was not to bed. The infection, not being drained by extraction of the tooth had reached the pericardial sac in which the heart lies. Mrs. K. died. Would you say she died of neglected teeth or of salegrempia?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Taking Alms

I am 57 years old. I have been troubled for some years with diarrhea. Recently I have been taking four grains of alms daily and find it relieves my trouble. Will this do me any particular harm? (E. A. G.)

Answer—No, it will do no harm to one over 55 years old.

Fatherly Advice

I am a Sunday school teacher with a class of 22 girls in their teens. I was much interested in the many helpful articles you have published concerning "spooning" and similar subjects. Many girls need advice of this character and it is hard to get just how to give it. You offered some on a letter on the subject. May I have some for my girls or may I purchase copies for them? (Elizabeth—)

Answer—No, I should be glad to send a letter of information on sex-hygiene to any girl over 15 who wishes to write for it and inclose a stamped envelope addressed to herself; or to any girl under 16, if her parents wish it. These letters are not intended as general pamphlets or tracts. They are personal communications from me as a physician. I can mail you a list of pamphlets and books which you may study and recommend to girls in your capacity as teacher.

Coffee Eating

What harm will coffee eat a person who is constantly eating or chewing coffee grounds and drinking coffee at every meal? (M. A.)

Answer—That amounts to abuse of the nervous system, which will make the individual irritable and impulsive. Such excessive use of tea or coffee tends to impair the health generally, causing a salivary complexion, emaciation, chronic stomach or digestive troubles. The habit betrays a weak will and lack of self control.

Eye Exercise

For a long time I have worn glasses (I am 15 years old) which enable me to see with ease near and distant objects. I believe my defect is weakness of the focusing apparatus. Is it not beneficial to leave off the glasses once in a while in order to give the weak focusing muscle some exercise? (O. S.)

Answer—No, no fear. That muscle gets all and more over the nature made it to do, in our modern life. This idea of "exercising" eye muscles by going without glasses, if glasses are really necessary, is based on misunderstanding of the work and function of the eye muscles.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Friday, Oct. 30, 1896

C. B. Fride went north to survey and investigate a water power.

Three tramps who had spent the night at the police station were turned loose and another was sent to the workhouse for seven days.

A large delegation of Appleton people attended a leap year party the night previous at Kaukauna.

Mrs. George M. Miller entertained at dinner in honor of her mother, Mrs. Hutchinson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Cook and children of Chicago were visiting Appleton friends.

The committee of the board in charge of the matter, consisting of Supervisors Nungler, McNeely, Higenberg, Dey, Kuehn and Tubbs, visited the new workhouse for tramps and formally accepted the building.

A venison lunch was served at Henry Mockley's place of business on Appleton-st.

William Jennings Bryan, candidate for president, delivered a 20-minute speech from the rear end of his special train at the Northwestern depot that was listened to by 5,000 people. He was making a campaign tour of Wisconsin.

The scaffolding about the college dome was blown away the night previous by a heavy wind that did considerable damage to property in the city.

Archie Kellogg, of Kaukauna, who was injured in the football game in Appleton between Kaukauna and Ryan high school teams, was reported in a dangerous condition.

At a special clothing sale the day following Green & Schreder were to give away 2,000 and basket of grapes with each purchase of one dollar.

Hunting Ground Plan

By Frederic J. Haslin

Washington—The creation of public duckhunting marshes, where the game will be scientifically protected as it is in the great private hunting club grounds, but where any citizen of the United States may hunt in the open season by paying one dollar to the Federal Government, is now being urged by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The plan is embodied in a bill which has been introduced in the House by Representative Anthony and in the Senate by Senator New. If it does not pass, it will probably be because of the failure of American sportsmen to bear about it and demand its passage, for it will be an undoubted boon to them.

Good hunting and a free range is what the measure means to the four or five millions of American gunners, but it means a good deal more than that to the Government scientists who have framed it. They say agriculture requires that a large part of the remaining marsh lands and ponds in this country be kept in their natural state. If the draining of them goes steadily on, the internal economy of the soil is going to suffer.

Thus presumably does not apply to the coastal regions of the south, where the whole country is one vast swamp for miles and miles. But throughout the New England and Middle Atlantic States, the Middle West and West, ponds and marshes have become steadily fewer for many years. Most of them have been drained and converted into farm lands and factory sites. Even the great swamp wildernesses of the South, which begin with the Diamond Swamp south of Norfolk, Virginia, and extend in an almost unbroken strip to the end of the Everglades in Florida, are beginning to be invaded by the drainage canal and the settler.

Drainage Makes Drouth

This drainage of swamps was long regarded as a good thing, and up to a certain point it is, but the experts have found that when nearly all of the ponds and marshes in a given region have been drained, the land is impoverished. The water table—that is, the level of the underground water—falls. This makes the region more susceptible to drouth. It affects the growth of forests and the flow of streams. It upsets the balance of nature. If this draining goes on unchecked, the agricultural value of great areas of land will be impaired.

Furthermore, the experts point out that if these marshes and ponds are rightly used, they often produce more than the land under them would produce if drained. They are the natural home of fur bearing animals and of fish. If the taking of these creatures is controlled so that they are kept at a maximum abundance, a marsh or pond may make a considerable yield per acre in fish and fur, not to mention wild fowl. Many marshes in addition yield grasses valuable as hay and in manufacture. Marshes and ponds give a supply of natural ice. In a word, such a water area, rightly used, is a great asset to a community, and indiscriminate drainage is as shortsighted as indiscriminate cutting of timber to make new fields.

Besides these considerations, marshes and ponds are necessary to the success of the migratory bird law. This law, which protects the wild fowl and other migratory birds in their spring flight northward, has already succeeded to the extent that it has made wild fowl more abundant than they have been in a century. It has enabled them to reach their northern breeding grounds without molestation in the spring. But their hosts in this country, when they return South in the fall, have been greatly restricted. The wild duck is in the position of being all protected and no place to go.

Costs Money to Hunt
Then again, an increasing number of the places where ducks winter are privately owned and controlled, and the Government scientists who are hunting grounds by clubs and wealthy individuals is on the increase. In many cases, whole marshes are owned. In other cases, where the areas involved are too large for ownership, like Back Bay, Virginia, clubs own nearly all of the desirable water frontage, and all of the best points upon which blinds may be built.

The Anthony-New Bill provides that the Department of Agriculture shall buy or rent suitable areas of ponds and marshes in all of the states. The maintenance of these preserves is to be paid for by a Federal hunting license of $1.00, to be paid by every citizen who shoots over the Government preserves.

These areas are to be scientifically administered. They will be stocked with fish, and the plants which furnish the best food for wild fowl will be introduced. The birds will be carefully protected in the closed seasons, and the areas will be public hunting grounds in the open season. They will also furnish good fishing, swimming and camping. They will be places where school children can go for picnics and for purposes of nature study.

Many picturesque regions, which otherwise would soon be drained, will be saved by this measure if it becomes a law. The famous Kankakee marshes in Indiana, for example, which have been a favorite resort of sportsmen and naturalists for a hundred years, would be an excellent area for Government administration.

THE QUESTION BOX

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haslin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not undertake to settle domestic quarrels, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. Has the constitutionality of the 18th amendment been tested in the courts? L. A. W.

A. The United States Supreme Court on June 7, 1920, handed down a decision in the case of G. C. Dempsey and C. Feigenbaum, plaintiffs, in which they sustained the constitutionality of the 18th amendment.

Q. What is the origin of the name catsup? T. E. M.

A. Catsup is a word derived from the name of an East Indian pickle. The term was first applied to the boiled spiced juice from salted mushrooms, but it is now freely used for various sauces which consist of the pulp—boiled, strained, and seasoned—of tomatoes, green walnuts, etc.

Q. Can you tell me the name of the French epigrammatist whose wit-dictions rank with those of La Rochefoucauld? A. M. S.

A. You doubtless have reference to Sebastian Roch Nicholas Chamfort, whose aphorisms are said to be "the keenest, the most incisive, and the most pungently cynical in modern literature."

Q. What is agricultural lime? M. V. W.

A. The term "agricultural lime" was originally applied to burned or slaked lime of the kind which was used to settle domestic sewage. The term was first applied to the boiled spiced juice from salted mushrooms, but it is now freely used for various sauces which consist of the pulp—boiled, strained, and seasoned—of tomatoes, green walnuts, etc.

Q. What kind of grass is it that Luther Burbank developed corn from? E. D. M.

A. Luther Burbank's experiments, according to reports, were made with wild teosote grass.

Q. Why is Fuji San the Holy Mountain of Japan? M. E.

A. A number of reasons enter into the fact that this mountain is called the Holy Mountain of Japan. The perfection of beauty, its supposedly miraculous creation, and the fact that on its slopes are many shrines, cause thousands of pilgrims to hold the mountain in reverence and to visit it annually.

Q. What is meant by "Quo Vadis"? J. D.

A. In the Latin phrase "Quo Vadis" the word "quod" means "where" and "vadis" means "you go." In modern English it would be translated "Where are you going?"

Q. How many Negroes are there in San Francisco? L. M. G.

A. According to the 1920 census there are 2,414 Negroes in San Francisco, California.

Q. How large a swordfish has there ever been caught? J. B. T.

A. The Bureau of Fisheries, says that according to a late publication of one of the fish magazines the largest swordfish caught, before being dressed weighed 1100 pounds, and 917 pounds after being dressed.

Q. How many automobile tires are made in the United States each year? G. A. R.

A. In 1920 there were 32,400,000 tires produced in the United States.

Q. When a player goes to bat and is walked, is he counted at bat? R. R.

A. When a player is walked, he is not counted at bat.

Q. What are prayers called that are used in some churches when a special people are prayed for? W. A.

A. A prayer which bids or directs what is to be prayed for is known as a bidding prayer. This form of exhortation always concluding with the Lord's Prayer, was enjoined by the fifteenth canon of the Anglican church in 1553; to be used before all sermons and homilies. It was, and is in its abridged form still, is very impressive, allowing individuals to supply from their knowledge special cases of necessity under the different heads.

Q. What is the Franklin Fund? C. R. S.

A. The Franklin Fund was a bequest made by Benjamin Franklin in 1721, for the making of loans to young married mechanics. He left 1,000 pounds sterling to be lent out at 5 per cent interest in sums of not more than 50 pounds, and not less than 12 pounds to "young married artificers under the age of 25 who have faithfully served an apprenticeship in Boston." The loans were to be repaid in annual installments of 10 per cent each. The trustees were the board of aldermen and the ministers of the oldest Episcopal, Congregational and Presbyterian churches in that city.

Q. Are there red cornucopias really red with blood? C. B.

A. So-called "red blood cornucopias" are in reality straw color when seen singly but, when seen in masses they appear red and do give the blood red color, bright red when full of oxygen, dark red, almost purple, when deprived of their oxygen, through tissue absorption.

A Resume of American Newspaper Opinion

The Menace of Rail Paralysis

With the recurrence of a danger that is generally regarded as one of the greatest calamities that can befall a country—a nationwide paralysis of its transportation—the problem of agencies for handling such a situation becomes a vital one which American editors just now are seriously considering. Aside from the merits of any given controversy which threatens to result in a railroad strike, the very menace that it holds brings up questions which are graphically put by the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD (Ind.) thus:

"How shall society defend itself against the perverted Frankenstein it has reared to serve it, and which threatens it with destruction. How much longer can people and governments content themselves with saying 'curses, but damn the luck? How much longer rely on moral suasion and an inchoate public opinion, and a President rushing hat in hand, from door to door, pleading with both sides for God's sake to be reasonable, and if not reasonable, merciful?"

It is no vain assertion, however, in the opinion of the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR (Boston, Ind.) that "the people of the United States have provided adequate and altogether satisfactory agencies for the adjustment of just such differences as those which now threaten industrial stagnation and social discomfort." The reference of the MONITOR is to the Railway Labor Board, but the body is a matter of some dispute in the press. The conclusion is reached that as an agency of mediation the Labor Board is adequate only when its decisions are satisfactory, and that in the absence of power to enforce its awards the public is still without means of protection against active conflict between the roads and the employees.

"We have gone to great lengths," says the MONITOR (Ind.) STAR (Ind.) in supplying the board with tribunals where its evidence and arguments may be presented to sympathetic ears. Labor's answer now is "that when decisions suit it, it will obey them, and when they do not we must face rebellion." At the same time, the JOHNSTOWN DEMOCRAT (Dem.) points out, "the railroad men show a disposition to disregard or even to defy the Railway Labor Board, and since certain roads 'seem to have ignored the board's recommendations with impunity,' the KNOXVILLE SENTINEL (Ind. Dem.) suggests that the Board be placed in a position which 'makes it more difficult to deal effectively with the strike threat.' The fact that the Board 'has no means for compelling observance, except the pressure of public sentiment' is, to the RICHMOND TIMES DISPATCH (Ind. Dem.) 'one of the vital defects' of the act creating the Board, which 'should never have been allowed to become a law without the necessary penal clause attached.' So far as enforcement is concerned the SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN (Ind.) agrees that the organic act is 'little short of ridiculous' in its failure to make 'violation of the Board's decisions an offense against the law, since 'a decision cannot enforce it.' Further, the WALL STREET JOURNAL (Ind.) points out, the act 'does not even define a violation of the Board's orders.' As part of legislation which makes 'elaborate provision for financing roads, fixing rates and regulations' and so on, the ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS (Denver, Ind.) finds it 'strange' that Congress 'should have left to the public the vital question of wages and rules for employees.' Rather, it asks, 'is it not an exhibition of moral cowardice'.

The Each Cummins law, the CHICAGO NEWS (Ind.) concedes, 'is not as potent as it might be' nevertheless 'the intent of Congress is clear and certain.' The Railway Labor Board was established, the LINCOLN (Neb.) STATE JOURNAL (Ind. Rep.) explains, 'as a neutral, or at least a bi-partisan court,' and while 'its decisions may not be legally enforceable' it is perhaps 'undesirable, at the present stage, that they should be.' In the nature of things, the NEW YORK GLOBE (Ind.) holds, 'absolute authority could not be exercised, because "capitalists cannot be compelled to hire men and men cannot be compelled to work." And "the reason for the omission of a penalizing provision should not be lost sight of," the BOSTON TRANSCRIPT (Ind. Rep.) observes. Rather than establishing a court to pass upon the Board's decision and compel obedience Congress preferred to rely on "the great court of public opinion," and "the issue precipitated by the calling of a general strike can be regarded," the OKLAHOMA CITY OLAHOMAN (Dem.) thinks, "as a test of the power of the people to compel respect for the decisions of a board created for the purpose of insuring justice, not only for the railways and the railway workers, but for the public also."

However, since the present situation is accepted generally as "a vital showdown for the Railway Labor Board," as the WILMINGTON (N. C.) STAR (Dem.) expresses it, in which the BOSTON TRANSCRIPT (Ind.) declares, "it is fighting for its life," the SIOUX CITY JOURNAL (Rep.) thinks it is hardly "safe to depend upon the weight of public opinion to enforce the decisions." It is a government body, says the PORTLAND (Me.) EXPRESS AND ADVERTISER (Rep.), and "as such is entitled to respect and obedience," and it cannot be "defied voluntarily." It must be empowered in some way to enforce its decrees, or, as the PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN (Rep.) declares, "teeth must be inserted in the law to compel recognition of the 'paramount public interest' in transportation service."

But there is another "real weakness" in the Transportation Act affecting the Labor Board which a number of writers point out. "Nobody outside a lunatic asylum," the NEW YORK WORLD (Dem.) asserts, "would seriously propose that every corporation should have two independent and co-ordinate boards of directors—one to manage income and one to manage expenses." Yet, it declares, such an "experiment in lunacy" has been undertaken in a law under which "the Interstate Commerce Commission dictates the income of the railroads" and the Railway Labor Board fixes expenditures. There has never been "any co-ordination" between the two government agencies concerned with railroads' revenues and expenditures, and basing wages on rates, the NEWARK NEWS (Ind.) believes, "necessitates keeping the wage-fixing power in the same hands that make the rates, namely, in those of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

Chopin's Last Pupils

Musicians who love Chopin will learn with surprise that the last pupil of that great master is alive and in great distress. He is M. Peru, aged 91. He lives in a tumble-down house in the Rue de Dragon—miles away from the modern Paris hotels. The Paris correspondent of the LONDON CHRONICLE writes:

"He has a piano loaned him by a friendly pianoforte firm. The pupil of Chopin, thanking the firm for the loan, asked when he should return it. The delicate answer was, 'When you have finished playing.' The time of my death," replied Peru, with tears in his eyes.

"Peru occupies an attic with his wife, daughter and little grandson. The women look forward with great apprehension to the approach of winter, when the sun's rays never enter their little room. But Peru smiles. 'I shall warm my heart playing Chopin's Nocturnes,' he says."

BLACK AND WHITE LATEST IN UMBRELLAS

By Marian Hale

New York.—This season's umbrellas show the change of fashion in the handles since the small combination sun and rain umbrella suspended on the wrist by a strap, gave way to bigger proportions last year.

The dress umbrella, such as one carries with a fur coat or a smart wrap, is done with exquisite detail.

Even the leather strap with its bakelite ends is handsomely worked. The handle of the umbrella, ending in the stub ferrule, is combined of carved bakelite and wood. The tips are of bakelite. This Franklin Simon umbrella is in all colors.

Black and white are the mode in dress umbrellas—white bakelite upon which, black bakelite is applied in designs, being the very latest.

Even the stub ferrule is artistically worked out in designs of black and white while the strap is black leather. A novelty Franklin Simon umbrella has a vanity case, powder puff and mirror in the top of the handle.

The old-fashioned hook umbrella, with amber handle, is still good and amber ornately carved is also modish. The umbrellas measure 25 inches.

ed to George DeByl and Clifford Vandervorden. Mrs. Harry Hoh and Miss Lucille Sellg won prizes at plumpsack. Seventeen tables were in play.

Party for Parents

Hints About Cabbage

With the passing of fresh green vegetables from the garden cabbage comes into its own, as a salad.

If a head of cabbage is fresh the leaves are usually crisp and tender, but if half of the head has been used and the rest saved for future use, the cabbage wilts and is a bit tough. To crisp the cabbage, shred it an hour or two before needed. Let stand in very cold water for half an hour. Then drain and wrap in a soft cloth and let stand on ice for an hour. The water is all absorbed by the cloth, leaving the cabbage dry and it's crisp and tender. Then dress as usual.

Cabbage Salad

Two cups shredded cabbage, 1/2 cup minced celery, 4 tablespoons chopped sweet green pepper, 4 tablespoons chopped nuts, sour cream dressing.

Mix cabbage, celery and pepper with dressing. Arrange on plates and sprinkle with nuts.

Cold Slaw

Three cups shredded cabbage, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar.

FOR DRESSING: 3/4 cup sour cream, 3 teaspoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup vinegar, paprika.

Sprinkle cabbage with salt and sugar and bruise with a wooden potato masher. Add sugar and salt to cream and beat until stiff adding the vinegar gradually. The cream and vinegar must be very cold. Mix well with cabbage and serve at once. Sprinkle the top of each plate with paprika.

Sour Cream Dressing

Three-fourths cup sour cream, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon mustard, paprika, onion.

Rub the bowl in which the dressing is to be mixed with a cut onion. Beat egg slightly with salt, mustard and sugar. Add vinegar, beating constantly. Add cream slowly, also beating constantly. Cook over hot water until the dressing coats the spoon. Cool and pour over salad.

A QUEER DIN

One day Mr. Sprinkle-Blow and Nancy and Nick were walking through the orchard to find out from Mrs. Redbreast and Mrs. Bluebird and Mrs. Red Winged Blackbird and a few other folks, if the weather suited them.

"Land, yes!" said Mrs. Redbreast, coming down to a lower limb, the better to talk "It's the first time this summer I've had an instant to myself. What with helping Robin with the nest building and hatching out my family and feeding them 'n' all, to say nothing of the way they all hung onto my apron strings afterwards, expecting me to dig their worms and never minding cats and dogs any more than they would a fly, not as much indeed, and giving me no heart failure every time one would come near, the way the silly things would just sit like ninnyes and never budge out of their way at all—" Mrs. Redbreast drew a long breath and began again.

"And they're only just beginning to look out properly for themselves, and the last time Robbie Jr. came home to see me, he was wearing a reddish vest instead of his brown spotted one, which showed that he was very grown-up. Yes, I've just begun to catch up with my reading and my letter-writing and by visiting. My, I'm just that far behind with my calls that I won't have a friend left! Oh, I do hope you'll leave the weather nice for a spell, Mr. Weatherman."

"Me, too!" put in Mrs. Red Wing, and several other ladies who'd been listening called out, "We all feel the same, sir! We're anxious to make summer last."

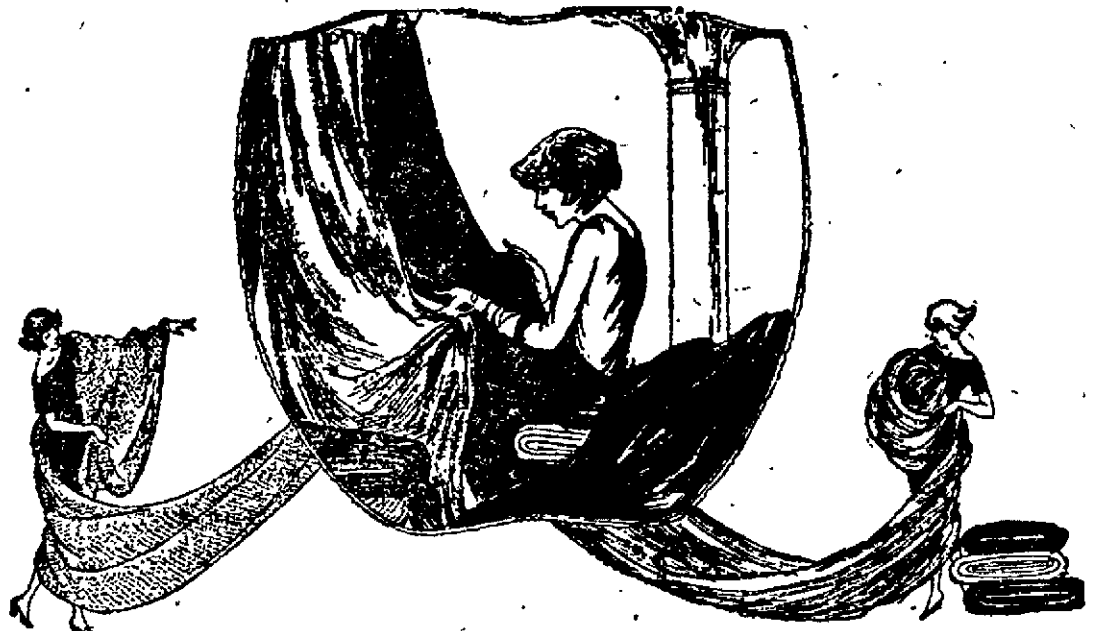

Just then there was a sudden din that fairly deafened them all. It sounded like the scraping of a hundred iron pots.

Had Close Shave

"My wife and children thought I was dying when, after an attack of acute pains in my stomach, I became unconscious. It was right after my Sunday dinner. They say I looked like dead and guess I had a pretty close shave. I had been having more or less stomach trouble and bloating with gas for past two years and could get no permanent help. Talking with a friend about my attack, he advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I have not had any gas or stomach trouble since taking it eighteen months ago." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the external causes from the intestinal tract and cures practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded—Druggists everywhere.

DENIES DIETZ WAS EJECTED FROM HOME

Milwaukee.—"My father was not driven from home; he has money in the bank and left our home of his own volition," said Leslie J. Dietz, son of John Dietz, of "defender of Camaron Dam fame" Thursday in answer to statements credited to Dietz, published in various state papers, that he had been driven to quit the home of his son in Milwaukee.
 "My father's outlook on life, since his imprisonment, is abnormal. He is under the impression that we have accepted bribes from the lumber company which prosecuted him. This is not true," Leslie said.

DYED HER DRESS AND CHILD'S COAT

Buy "Diamond Dyes" and follow the simple directions in every package. Don't wonder whether you can dye or tint successfully, because perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with "Diamond Dyes" even if you have never dyed before. Worn, faded dresses, skirts, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything, become like new again. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.

THIN, FLAT HAIR GROWS LONG, THICK AND ABUNDANT

"Danderine" costs only 35 cents a bottle. One application ends all dandruff, itching and falling of hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant.

USE BIG TRACTOR FOR BUILDING ROAD

Caterpillar Tractor Gets Over Road Which is Impassable to Horses

A caterpillar tractor is being used for road work in Outagamie co., for the first time, and, according to Otto Rohm, superintendent of county patrolmen, is doing the work of eight teams. It is being tried out in a marsh on the Hortonville-Stephensville-New London rd., a short distance north of Hortonville and is doing very satisfactory work.

A deep ditch has been dug on both sides of the road and the earth thrown up in the middle. The work of grading is now in progress and the earth was so soft it was impossible to use horses. The caterpillar tractor passes over it without any trouble and the men engaged on the work expect to have a good road before it freezes up. The ditching and grading will be completed about the same time.

Mr. Rohm said the highway patrolmen are all still on their jobs and will remain at work until cold weather as it will require about another month to complete the season's program. The work of grading the road north of Freedom village was commenced Tuesday and will be finished this fall. The grading of the road north of Seymour is well under way. The highway is known as county trunk and there is a possibility of it being paved with concrete next year.

The bridge over Wolf river on the Stephensville-New London rd. has just been replanked and painted.

DUCK HUNTING IS THANKLESS SPORT

Nimrods Declare Warm Weather Has Retarded Flight of Fowl

A marked scarcity of water fowl is reported by Police Sergeant James E. McCabe and J. L. Wolf who have returned after spending two weeks in duck hunting at Norwegian Bay, Lake Poygan.

Ducks are extremely difficult to bag this year, Sergeant McCabe said, and the flocks are small and scattered. The time has passed several days for the return flight of bluebill and yet very few of this variety are to be found around the lakes. Due to agreeable weather in the northlands, mallards are delaying their annual migration and only a few of these birds are yet to be found.

Ducks refuse to decoy this year, the hunters said, and the use of either artificial or live decoys seemed unsatisfactory. Their first day's hunting was the most satisfactory, both hunters declared.

Milk or Leaves--WHICH?

Dr. Charles E. North in his address before The National Council of Canada, brought out very clearly the relation of the milk and better health. He has certainly stated the facts in a very clear and understandable way. Speaking of vitamins he said—

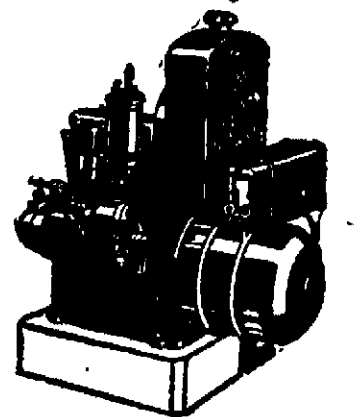

"Now we begin to see that milk is a substance that has in it something of far more importance than we suppose, because if the dairy cow concentrates and extracts vitamins from the green leaves and deposits it in her milk, then milk must be filled with these vital growth-promoting substances. What is more natural to think than if nature has produced such a substance as milk that is designed for the food of the young animal that it should contain the things necessary to make the young animal grow? Did you ever think that the only substance that nature has ever produced for food purposes, and for food purposes only, is milk. You cannot think of anything else in nature that is meant for food only. Nature seems to have undertaken the task of producing a food when she produces milk and as one English scientist says, whenever nature undertakes to do anything she always does it well. In producing milk nature has produced a masterpiece, unmatched. None has ever succeeded in producing anything like it. Now we see in addition to containing ordinary fat and cream and cheese and curd it has in it also this magical substance called vitamins which makes the young animal grow and which makes the young child grow. No chemist has ever been able to extract this. No one has been able to get it out of the milk. But just think what it means when I tell you that the dairy cow will consume forty or fifty pounds of green leaves in one day and produce out of it ten quarts of milk, so that on the average each quart of milk that you buy contains the extract of four pounds of green leaves.

Now, if the doctors should tell you that in order to make your boy or girl grow they ought to eat four pounds of green leaves you would resent it very much. If he should tell you that to keep yourself well and strong you ought to have the extract of two pounds of green leaves every day you would look on it as a very serious thing to have to sit down and eat two pounds of green leaves. But the dairy cow has got all of these vitamins interested in the production of home brew beaten. The dairy cow is a real distillery. She is able to take these green leaves and concentrate and boil down this extract in her system and hand you out milk in which the vitamins are concentrated."

SCOUT LEADERS OF STATE OPEN CONFERENCE HERE

First Meeting is Held at Noon—Many State Executives Here

National leaders and state executives of the Boy Scouts of America met in Appleton Friday noon for the annual conference of state scout executives which is being held here for the first time since the scout movement began. The first session was opened at 12 o'clock with luncheon at Hotel Appleton which is the headquarters of the conference.

Scout leaders here for the conference are James E. West, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America; Lorne W. Barclay of New York, director of the department of education; J. P. Freeman of Chicago, assistant national field director; Walter M. Kiplinger of Chicago, regional scout executive; W. Edgar Wylie of Chicago, deputy regional scout executive; C. N. Meserve of St. Paul, regional executive of region 10.

Scout executives of Wisconsin who are here for the conference are L. E. Guthrie of Rhineland, Thornton Wilcox of Marinette, F. D. Chadwick of Manitowish, G. C. Driesbach of Waupun, Fred Q. Hartsock of Merrill, J. A. Bothol of Menomonie, Howard P. Buck of Appleton, M. B. Sackett of Beloit, F. M. Tordy of Fond du Lac, D. M. Cranston of Green Bay, D. O. Fogwell of Kenosha, R. A. Overholzer of Madison, W. L. Davidson of Milwaukee, R. C. Rogers of Racine, Paul Simonds of Sheboygan, A. C. Jones of Stevens Point, J. E. Knapp of Wisconsin Rapids and H. G. Zion of Escanaba, Mich.

As the scout officials arrived they were escorted to the hotel in automobiles with a detachment of Appleton Boy Scouts in charge. In the forenoon, Scout Executive Howard P. Buck took the national leaders for an auto ride to Kaukauna.

The annual meeting of the Appleton scout council will be held Friday evening. Mr. West will address the council.

ANNUAL OBSERVANCE OF ALL SAINTS DAY

Members of All Saints church are planning to make the commemoration of All Saints day an annual event in the parish. The day in the future will be marked by special services and such social events as will tend to the solidifying of the parish and better acquaintance of the members. For this year the plans are quite simple. There will be a special service at 10 o'clock to commemorate the patronal festival, with a short address on the day.

Social Dances, Eagle's Hall, Saturdays, 8 p. m. to 12 p. m. Opening Saturday, Oct. 29. Hear the Ragopators. Admission: Gentlemen 75c, including tax. Ladies 35c. Dancing lessons every Tuesday and Thursday. Guarantee Dancing School, Prof. G. E. and L. W. Grant, managers and instructors.

and special intercessions for the parish. In the evening there will be a Halloween party for members of the parish at the home of Mrs. L. H. Moore.

FINISHING WORK ON CITY STREETS

With the chiding of College-ave. between Outagamie and Victoria-sts., the street department will have done away with most of the mudholes that hinder Appleton traffic during rainy periods. Workmen are putting finishing touches on this stretch.

Widening of Telulah-st. is progressing rapidly and will be finished in a few days. O. F. Weissgerber, city engineer, says. This alteration will give the Fourth ward another main artery of traffic. Grading crews also are putting Warner and Henry-sts. into first class condition while their equipment is in that locality.

Construction of shoulders on Brickyard-rd. by Greunke brothers will be completed by Saturday, Mr. Weissgerber believes. All traffic restrictions then will be removed.

GRANGE OBSERVES 48TH BIRTHDAY

Greenville Grange, one of the oldest in the state, celebrated the forty-eighth anniversary of its organization at its hall Thursday evening with a supper and program. Mrs. Karpington, a charter member, was present, but took no active part in the program because of her advanced age. The only other surviving charter member is John L. Pingel, who was unable to be present.

Among those who made brief talks were R. J. Schaefer, Paul O. Nyhaus farm agent and L. O. Wissman, cashier of the First National bank. Mr. King representative of the Farm Bureau, and Charles Haase, one of the early officers. About 150 persons attended the celebration. The present membership of the Grange is 155.

EMPLOYMENT MANAGERS MAY FORM ASSOCIATION

Another meeting of employment managers of Fox river valley industries will be held in the reception room of the Menasha Woodmenware Co. at Menasha on Tuesday, Nov. 2. It is probable that a permanent organization will be formed at that time.

A similar meeting was held at Menasha a few weeks ago when plans were discussed for forming an organization which would have for its purpose the betterment of employment conditions in the Fox river valley. It is believed that Nov. 2 meeting will result in the formation of a permanent association.

Add Another Story
The work of pouring cement for the third floor of the new Aid Association for Lutherans office building will begin next Monday. Work upon the structure is progressing rapidly and the in dications are the next two floors will be added before cold weather.

NINE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY ARE ILL WITH TYPHOID

Entire Frank Krause Family in Serious Condition—Recoveries Expected

After several months of immunity, typhoid fever has again invaded Appleton and the entire Frank H. Krause family of nine is very ill with the disease.

Mrs. Krause and 2 year old baby were hurried to St. Elizabeth hospital Thursday in the Kunitz ambulance when the gravity of their condition became apparent. Three boys of the family were already in the hospital at that time and one boy, two girls and the father are ill at their home at 1372 Spencer st.

The physician who is in attendance said that with the exception of one, all the members of the family have a good chance for recovery. He said the children had been taken ill more than two weeks ago but the disease had not been identified as typhoid until a few days ago.

M'GILLAN RETURNS FROM CONVENTION

George P. McGillan, chief of the Appleton fire department has returned home after attending the forty-ninth annual convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs in Atlanta, Ga.

More than 500 fire chiefs from the United States and Canada attended the convention and attendance of various city officers and insurance men swelled the number to about 1,500.

The convention is entirely for educational purposes. New fire hazards were studied and papers on methods of eliminating old fire hazards were read by experts. An exhibition of every kind of fire-fighting apparatus was held at the auditorium in Atlanta and was inspected with much interest by the chiefs.

Next year the association will hold its golden jubilee convention into meet there several years so it was decided to give that city the honor of entertaining the golden jubilee.

A water color drawing of the new office building of the Aid Association for Lutherans, prepared by the architects and showing the building as it will appear when completed, is on exhibition on J. T. McCann Co.'s show window.

JUNIOR HI-Y CLUB IS PLANNING FOR A HIKE

The Junior Hi-Y club held its third regular meeting at 7:30 Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Routine business was transacted. Plans were completed for a hike to be held Thursday Nov. 3. Walter Griffin presided because of the absence of the club president. It was agreed to fix 25 cents as the initiation fee. Irving Auld was in charge of the discussion group and gave a talk on "Christian Life."

All Boys Invited
General invitations are extended to the boys of Appleton to attend the Halloween party held in the boys division of the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening, Oct. 31. An evening of fun and games has been planned.

"You Know the Place"

You remember the story of the Pitcher—

It made a good many trips to the well and it came back in good order.

"I can take care of myself," it said—"they don't need to talk about risks to me."

But it went once too often.

After that it was only part of a pitcher, and they didn't need to talk to it about risks—it knew.

A lot of people won't believe coffee can harm them until it does harm them.

"Nonsense!" they say, "it never disturbs me."

When it does disturb them, then they know.

Often the disturbance which they then recognize is the result of irritations to nerves and digestion which have been going on for a long time.

If you have to lie awake at night and count the clock ticks, after an evening cup of coffee, then you know that it's better to be safe than sorry.

The risk of coffee's harm is gone when the meal-time drink is Postum.

Here's a delightful and satisfying table beverage, with charm for the taste and without harm for nerves or digestion. You know you're on the right road with Postum; there's never the possibility that you'll go once too often.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

"There's a Reason" for Postum

Made by Postum Cereal Company, Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

"CITY" FARMERS GETTING SET IN WESTERN HOMES

Members of "Scotty's Caravan" See Great Possibilities in West

Roseworth Tract, Idaho—Giant trees are crashing down; frame houses are going up; camp fires are burning; songs rise from the tented village. Thus is "Scotty's Caravan," which reached its destination recently after having motored to Idaho from Brooklyn, N. Y., "getting set" to live in a civilization made out of a wilderness. The caravan originally consisted of 28 families. Four have deserted. The remaining 24 are building their own homes—three-room cottages—and will soon turn to farming. Just three months ago all of these families were living in steam-heated apartments in Brooklyn. Today the women in the caravan are toiled out in khaki cutting clothes, preparing meals over open camp fires, and keeping house on a few boxes and trunks.

Call of the West
The call of the west came when P. C. Merideth, who, with his brother, former Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Merideth, owns the Roseworth tract, offered good crop land for sale cheap. William D. Scott, of Brooklyn, organized the caravan and a long string of autos and auto trailers headed for Idaho.

Arrival at Roseworth brought some dissatisfaction. It was feared that the Salmon River Canyon, lying between Roseworth and the town of Buhl, would prevent profitable marketing of crops.

A committee of the settlers went to Boise and asked that a suspension bridge be built. Governor Davis has indicated this will be done as soon as the territory is sufficiently built up. The former Brooklynites say they will never return to city life.

"I want you to see my home," said J. I. Holder, one of the settlers. "I've built it almost by myself. Some boys from Buhl gave me a hand, but no carpenters were hired."

"Some of us were disappointed at first. Things were a bit harder than we expected. But that's worn off. I believe we have a wonderful opportunity to make a fine thing out of the project."

Parents Are Happy

The rest agree with Holder. Families with children are especially enthusiastic about the open country. The nearest school house is six miles away, but the children are taken to and from it in a school auto bus.

Men folk are taking advantage of fine fishing and good pheasant shooting.

"Scotty," the caravan leader, is building himself a log cabin with a sod roof.

Church services at the Roseworth Tract are conducted in the open air by Rev. Charles Baird, who drives in from Twin Falls every Sunday.

WILL HONOR SAVAGE WHO SAVED HIS LIFE

Western Oil Operator to Journey to Australia to Erect Monument

Fort Worth, Tex. — W. J. Cassidy, Fort Worth oil operator, is going to Australia to place a monument over the grave of a cannibal queen.

Also he will take with him a dozen head of cattle to make a feast for the members of the girl's tribe.

Behind this unusual journey lies an almost unbelievable story that Cassidy revealed only after long urging.

Since the age of 15 he has been roaming the wilds of the world prospecting for gold and for oil.

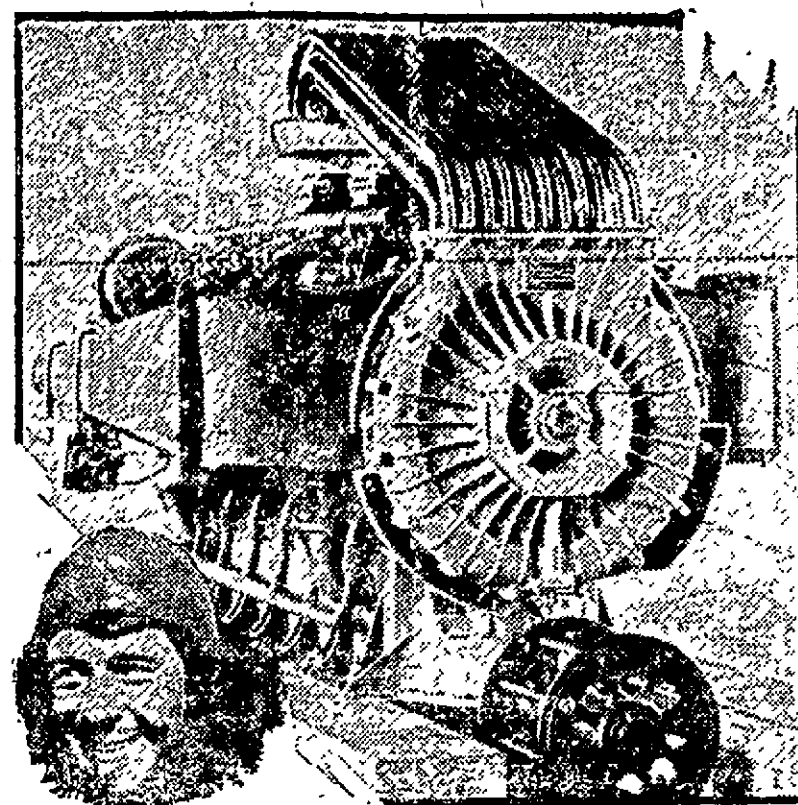

"When I was 15," says Cassidy, "three companions and myself were prospecting for gold in the cannibal country in northern Australia. I was captured by a band of them and carried into the hills, where for five days they tried to fatten me up for roasting."

"On the night before I was scheduled to furnish breakfast for the band, a girl about my own age, whom I had noticed watching me intently for several days during the dances of the tribe, crept up under cover of the darkness and cut the things that bound me to a tree."

"Like the other women of the tribe, she was repulsive. She had a bone through her nose and copper pieces through her ears. She, like the others, had no forehead, the hair beginning almost at the eyes."

"She was a princess of the tribe, soon to become its queen. Without speaking a word, she seized my hand and led me noiselessly away through the brush. We had not gone far before my absence was discovered, and the whole pack of tribesmen started after us, yelling like demons.

Girl Leads Way

"The girl began to run, dragging me after her, and in some miraculous way we escaped. For 10 days the cannibal girl guided me through the wilderness until we reached a British mining settlement 150 miles away."

"When we reached the British, the girl was in a quandary. She wanted me to run away with her again, but I had enough of cannibals."

"I took her to Cookstown in North Queensland and left her. If I had remained, I would have had to marry her out of gratitude, and I couldn't do that. Five months later she died. She could not thrive in civilization."

"And so I'm going to drop my work for a few months and go back to Cookstown. Over her grave I'm going to erect a suitable monument. It's the least that I can do."

"I'm going to take the cattle along and if I can locate those cannibals I'm going to send the beaves up to them. They missed a feast on me, and I really feel as if I owed 'em something."

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operation fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

ART OF KILLING HAS SHOWN ADVANCEMENT

Paris.—Statistics just compiled by the army medical service of the Ministry of War reveal the great advancement in the art of killing during the Great War. The statistics show that the proportion of men killed as compared to the total losses was 13.36 per cent—that is, about one man killed of every four hit—which is much greater than any previous war.

Likewise, the figures show the vast advancement in the science of hygiene. The number dead from disease and sickness is only about one-sixth the number killed by enemy fire.

The final figures of the French losses are given as follows:

Killed by enemy fire ..... 674,700

Died of wounds ..... 250,000

Missing, presumed killed by fire 225,300

Dead of disease ..... 175,000

Total dead ..... 1,325,000

FORDS RUN 34 MILES ON GALLON GASOLINE

Start Easy in Coldest Weather—Other Cars Show Proportionate Saving

A new carburetor which cuts down gasoline consumption of any motor and reduces gasoline bill from one-third to one-half is the proud achievement of the Air-Friction Carburetor Co., 146 Madison St., Dayton, Ohio.

That remarkable invention not only increases the power of motors from 30 to 50 per cent, but enables every one to run slow on high gear. It also makes it easy to start a Ford or any other car in the coldest weather. You can use the very cheapest gasoline and half kerosene and still get more power and more mileage than you now get from the highest test gasoline. All Ford owners can get as high as 34 miles to a gallon of gasoline. So sure are the manufacturers of the immense saving their new carburetor will make that they offer to send it on 30 days' trial to every car owner. As it can be put on or taken off in a few minutes by anyone all readers of this paper who want to try it should send their name, address and make of car to the manufacturers at once. They also want local agents, to whom they offer exceptionally large profits. Write them today.—Adv.

FRESHMEN SHOW MOST THRIFT OF H. S. STUDENTS

High School Bank is Making Good Record, Thanks to First Year Pupils

With more than 500 students of the 350 enrolled in the high school, as depositors, Appleton High School Thrift bank is enjoying the greatest prosperity in its history. This prosperity is due however, largely to the freshmen students who are making a real effort to save their money. Pupils in the three upper classes are showing more of a disposition to spend their money for good times and as a result their savings are less, a survey showed.

The bank is open 15 minutes daily. Deposits average from $15 to $20 a day.

Last year 75 per cent of the student body pledged to make deposits but only 25 per cent kept their pledges. Freshman lead in number of patrons, with juniors, seniors and sophomores following. Freshman students always make a remarkable showing in thrift but the other classes would rather go to the movies and buy candy than put their spare change in the bank.

The upper classes have the money but they will not save it. They have far more money than the pupils in the grades and the freshman but think too much of their good times to start a bank account. It seems that after a pupil has reached his sophomore year, the added social duties wipe out all the habits of thrift and saving," declared Miss Webster, faculty advisor of the high school bank.

The bank staff is composed of student directors each one with a special work. A pass book system has been inaugurated this year. Bank procedure is the same as in the largest institutions.

The following students were appointed bank directors at the beginning of the school year: Reed Havens, president; Richard Nelson, vice president and cashier; Harry Leith, assistant cashier; Leona Williams, assistant cashier; Lavohn Maesch, bookkeeper; George Kattenhofen, assistant bookkeeper; Cort Engler, Frank Hoppe and Joan Kreiss are tellers.

TEAR AWAY PART OF LAKE-ST. BRIDGE

The bridge on Lake-st. immediately south of the one that spans the canal leading to the plant of the Patten Paper Co. and which was filled a year ago, is to be removed by the city and bids are now being called for by the clerk for furnishing the necessary labor and material. It is the intention of the city to fill up whatever depression remains with cinders and to pave that portion of street.

U. S. KEEPING CLOSE WATCH ON WILD DUCKS

Uncle Sam keeps almost as close watch of game in various parts of the country as the game wardens do. This is indicated by a bulletin from the United States department of agriculture announcing that ducks are more plentiful than ever before in the Fox River valley.

A survey made in various hunting centers indicates that wild game birds have started their annual southward flight earlier than usual this year. Many more are on the wing than have flown south for years. No reason is assigned for this condition, but it means real sport for hunters, who need not wait as long for the open season.

Says Every Railroad Man Should Read This

Peterson's Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Dear Sir: I was afflicted with what the doctors said were Varicose Ulcers, and up until about five weeks ago I have been treating them for about a year and five months.

With all the treatments that were prescribed to me by several doctors I received little benefit, and they kept spreading and gave me much distress and caused me to quit my work.

I was induced by a brother brakeman to try Peterson's Ointment, and after I had used two boxes I saw wonderful results. You can tell suffering ones troubled with ugly, painful and horrid ulcers that your Ointment is a cure for them when everything else fails, as I have tried about everything. Thanking you many times over I am, your happy friend, Chas. J. Heyser, Battle Creek, Mich., 42 Glenwood Avenue, January 12, 1916.

"I know and dozens of people write me," says Peterson of Buffalo, "that Peterson's Ointment also cures corns, old sores, salt rheum, piles and all skin diseases, and all druggists sell a big box for 25 cents." Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Buffalo, N. Y. adv.

National Scout Leaders Here For Big Conference

Local Scouts Give Executives Rousing Welcome When They Arrive in City

When James E. West of New York, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, Lorne W. Barclay, director of the scout department of education, and other national leaders of the scout movement in America arrived in Appleton Friday to attend the annual conference of state scout executives, which is being held here they were met at the station by Appleton scouts and escorted to Hotel Appleton where the conferences are taking place.

About a score of scout executives and regional leaders are attending the conference. Each was given a reception by the scout troop and taken to the hotel in automobiles. Edmund and Joseph Dohr are the scouts in charge of the reception.

One hundred Appleton business men and others who are actively interested in the Boy Scout work in Appleton will attend the annual meeting of the scout council Friday evening. Reports of the last year's work will be read and new members will be elected to the court of honor. Henry W. Tuttrupp, president of the council, will address the meeting. Mr. Tuttrupp is also to give the address of welcome to the visiting scout leaders at luncheon Friday noon.

About 10 o'clock Saturday morning Appleton Boy Scout fire department will stage a fire-fighting demonstration on Washington-st. between Oneida and Appleton-sts.

Appleton is considered extremely fortunate in having the privilege of entertaining such men as Mr. West and Mr. Barclay, national and international leaders in scout work, and it may be many years before it will again have such a privilege.

Mr. West has always been much interested in child welfare work in this country. Because he was an orphan himself he has taken much interest in assisting orphans throughout the country.

By profession he is a lawyer and has been admitted to practice in the district and supreme courts of the United States. In his work of better living conditions for the youth of the land he has worked side by side with Judge Ben Lindsey and the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. West will speak five times during the conference and will address the scout council in its annual meeting.

Peter Napioncz of Two Rivers, federal revenue collector at the city hall, will be absent from his post of duty for the next two weeks because of an operation for appendicitis to which he has submitted. Notice to this effect was received by city officials Thursday from Leo Hustling of Oshkosh, who has charge of the second federal district of Wisconsin.

NEW SAWMILL FOR STANDARD MFG. CO.

Work is to be Started on New Plant at Once—Comple-
ed by Feb. 1

The Standard Manufacturing Co. is about to commence work on the foundation of a new saw mill, 28-by 86 feet in size. It will occupy the site of the former mill which has been torn down and will be equipped with the latest machinery. The capacity will be more than double that of the old mill. The company expects to have it in operation by Feb. 1.

The mill will be operated by steam power. The boiler house is being remodeled and the present steel smoke stacks are to be replaced by a 110 foot brick chimney, the contract for which has been awarded to Greinke Bros. Work on the foundation has been started.

The company has two boilers for the operation of the saw mill, one of which will be for emergency use. While the company does not specialize in custom sawing, farmers having logs which they wish to convert into lumber will still be taken care of when the new mill starts up.

Gets New Position
Word has been received in Appleton of the appointment of W. F. Faulkes as state supervisor of rehabilitation. Mr. Faulkes formerly was director of Appleton Vocational school.

MOST OF WOOD IN NEWSPRINT GROWN IN FOREIGN LANDS

U. S. Falling Far Behind as Producer of Pulpwood, Survey Shows

Inasmuch as this city is in the center of the paper industry of Wisconsin, considerable interest attaches to a survey of the pulpwood condition, made by the United States government, cooperating with the American Pulp and Paper association. This investigation showed that two-thirds of the news print used in the United States in 1920 was made from wood grown on foreign soil.

Out of more than 4,500,000 tons of wood pulp consumed for all purpose 35 per cent came from foreign markets. Over $191,000,000 was paid for the pulp wood, wood pulp, and paper imported. To this extent the United States has become dependent upon markets outside its control. This country can no longer draw its supply from our rapidly disappearing eastern forests. As a result primarily of forest depletion the cost of pulp wood rose more than 110 per cent in the five-year period 1916-1920, and of wood pulp 35 per cent since 1918.

Prior to 1905 practically all the paper consumed in this country was manufactured here. This is no longer true. The United States is now becoming more and more an important nation, and the paper making industry has grown until its capitalization approaches the billion dollar mark.

"The trouble in brief," says the bulletin, "is that we have mills without forests in the east and forests without mills in the west." In New England and New York where the forests have been largely worked out, there is the heaviest concentration of mills. In Alaska, where there is enough spruce and hemlock to supply present American news-print requirements indefinitely, there is only one mill. The industry has remained stationary in the east while the lumber industry has moved west.

DIAZ WEARS A SMILE

General A. V. Diaz of Italy, the first of the great allied commanders to visit America, smiles as New York crowds cheer him, on his arrival. He will attend the American Legion convention in Kansas City and the arms conference at Washington.

The remedy is twofold—locate more mills on the Pacific slope and reforest the east.

Wood pulp production in 1920 is placed at 3,821,704 tons and the average value at the mill of $72.20 per ton, an increase of $19.52 per ton, or 37 per cent over 1918 figures.

Mr. Wilkinson will make his first tour of the state division offices the last half of this week, including the Green Bay and Oshkosh branches.

CHEST CLINIC AT KAUKAUNA, NOV. 8-9

Kaukauna Womens Club and Anti-Tuberculosis Association Cooperate

Wide interest throughout the county is being manifested in the free chest clinic to be held at Kaukauna, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 8 and 9 by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association under the auspices of the Kaukauna Womens club. The hours for the clinic, which is to be held in Elks Building, are as follows: Tuesday, 9 a. m. to 3 p. m., Wednesday, 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. "The object of the clinic is to seek out early cases of tuberculosis," says a statement from the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. "The early discovery and treatment of tuberculosis is important for two reasons: First, because proper treatment at this time will usually affect a cure; second, because early cases are often dangerous carriers of infection. Members of families where there has been a death from tuberculosis or where there is a living case should be examined because it is not unusual to find several other active cases. By getting these cases early and inducing them to start treatment, we hope to check tuberculosis from sweeping through entire families as is often the case."

"The following are also urged to be examined: Anaemic and underweight children, persons who have had influenza, bronchitis, pneumonia and pleurisy and have not completely recovered their health; former-service men and draft rejects, who were pronounced tuberculous; persons having any symptoms of the disease."

"Local physicians are invited to bring in cases for consultation and to watch their examinations. All findings are held in the strictest confidence and every patient is given individual attention. No treatment is given but the patients are given a thorough examination, told frankly what their trouble is, and advised as to what is the best method of recovering their health."

Horses Help Tractor Plow Stumpy Land

How can a 20-horsepower tractor be increased three horsepower?

This is a seemingly impossible problem which Leo Woods of the town of Grand Chute, four miles west of Appleton, has solved to his own satisfaction.

Just the other day he began the work of plowing 30 acres of virgin land which had been recently cleared and is filled with roots and pieces of stumps. Every time the plows struck a large root the tractor's motor would sputter and stop. To avoid such frequent killing of the engine, Woods hitched three horses to the front of the tractor. Most of the time the horses do not pull at all but when a big root is encountered, their added force is sufficient to keep the engine at work and by "stepping on the gas" the machine plows through the obstruction.

ACCIDENTS INJURE THREE AT SEYMOUR

Paul Watus, Charles Rau and Mrs. Mary Armstrong Meet With Misfortunes

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Seymour.—The marriage of Miss Meta McCord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. McCord, and Frank Tubbs, both of this city, took place at the home of the bride's parents at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Milford.

The couple was attended by near relatives of the bride and bridegroom. A wedding dinner was served to the guests after the ceremony.

The bride's gown was of cotton crepe. She carried a shower bouquet of carnations, roses and chrysanthemums. The home was decorated with ferns and autumn leaves.

Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs are spending their honeymoon at Waupaca and Minneapolis. They will reside on the Woodland farm near Seymour.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daggett of New London and Mrs. Katherine Sals and grandson Harold Shaw of Hortonville visited with Mrs. C. Strassburger over Sunday.

Miss Hilda Koepf is spending a few days with her parents at Waupaca.

Paul Watus is laid up with two smashed and broken toes which he received while at work on a stone crusher.

Mrs. Charles Kollath of Manitowac has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Michael Trauffer and other relatives here.

The eleventh annual fireman's ball was held Thursday, Oct. 27.

A number of Seymour members of the Masonic lodge were at Clintonville Friday night to attend the service.

BRITISH HOSTESS AT ARMS MEET

The arms conference in Washington in November will be the occasion for brilliant social functions such as have not been seen in any capital in eight years—since before the war. Lady Godes, wife of the British ambassador, will be the British hostess. Since her coming to the embassy in Washington she has entertained perhaps more lavishly than any member of diplomatic society.

ices of the laying of the corner stone for the new temple being built there.

Mrs. Heinemann, who submitted to an operation at Deaconess hospital, Green Bay, has returned home. She is getting along nicely.

While returning from the Methodist church Sunday, Mrs. Mary Armstrong fell on the sidewalk and injured her right eye. About two months ago Mrs. Armstrong fell down the stairs and broke her right arm. Her broken arm was not as yet well when this took place.

Mrs. Laura Twitchell, Mrs. Towne and Miss Clara Fisher, attended the district Rebekah convention here last week.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. S. Drum Oct. 22.

7 MAIN POINTS IN CHINA'S CASE AT DISARMS MEET

Chinese Foreign Minister Suggests Pacific Arbitration Court at Shanghai

By Wm. Philip Simms

Washington.—The Chinese delegation will not come to the Pacific conference with portfolios packed with excessive demands, Dr. W. W. Yen, foreign minister, told me in an interview just before I left Peking.

China will not insist upon specifics but will endeavor to have laid down certain broad principles, safeguarding her political and territorial integrity. Shantung, Manchuria, Mongolia and kindred topics will not be used by her as direct questions to be settled at the conference, but rather as illustrations proving what must inevitably happen if the old order of things is perpetuated.

It is Dr. Yen's idea that if the Pacific powers can agree on the guiding principles he expects to submit to them. Injustices like Shantung will rectify themselves.

What China Will Ask

The main points in China's case at the conference will be:

1.—Insistence on the open door, America's policy with regard to the Far East since 1900.

2.—The abolition of "special spheres" of influence claimed by different nations.

3.—Control of her own resources, natural and artificial, including railways operating within her own borders.

4.—Nonrecognition of any treaty between foreign powers which infringes on her sovereignty.

5.—Equal treatment before the law of Chinese citizens.

6.—A scheme for the gradual abolition of extra territoriality.

7.—A "Pacific Court of Arbitration," a hundred plan for settling such disputes as may arise between the powers interested in the Far East in the future.

China's Argument

Dr. Yen considers it a waste of time pounding away on a detail when a question of principle is involved.

"Obviously," he told me, "if the policy of the open door, as propounded by the American Secretary of State John Hay, is really put into effect in China, there can be no 'special privileges' in Manchuria or anywhere else for any particular nation."

"If no nation is to have a 'special sphere of influence' on Chinese soil, there is no need to argue the Shantung matter. Shantung automatically returns to China unconditionally."

"It is agreed that China should have control of her resources and that no foreign government should be in a position to refuse China the use of a railway through Chinese territory, questions like the South Manchurian Railway, owned by Japan, disappear."

The Pacific Court

"And so it goes."

"As to consular jurisdiction in China, we will not ask its immediate abolition. Nor will we endeavor to fix precisely the term of years it is to continue in effect."

"Still China wishes to retain her sovereignty and so will suggest the eventual removal of extra territoriality—at some time in the future when China shall have perfected her judicial system. I don't say 10 years, 15 years, 20 years hence—it all depends."

"Another thing I am preparing for presentation at the conference is a plan for a Pacific Court of Arbitration, to sit, say at Shanghai. This special court would handle only such disputes as might arise between Pacific powers and would not conflict in any way with the world court, but rather supplement it and lessen its labors."

VETS ENLISTING IN SPANISH ARMY

Will Take Part in Morocco Colonization by Barbaric War Methods

By Norris Quinn

Washington.—Two hundred and fifty Americans who have enlisted in the Spanish army and taken oaths of allegiance to the Spanish crown are now at Ceuta, a debarkation point on the coast of Morocco. They are awaiting transport to the zone where Spanish troops are waging a losing fight on Moroccan revolutionists.

These Americans are mostly veterans of the World War. Some of them were officers. They were picked up by Spanish recruiting agents in New York and New Orleans. Most of them joined the Spanish forces as a refuge from unemployment and starvation.

If the reserves and heavy casualties which thus far have marked the Spanish campaign in Morocco continue when the Americans get into action, their chances of returning to the United States alive will be slender.

Spanish Methods

Spain has used the same methods in colonizing Morocco she used in settling South America—murder, rape and pillage. Her tenure of Morocco has been marked by a series of wars and rebellions, while French occupancy of adjacent sections of North Africa has been highly satisfactory both to natives and Europeans.

Lieutenant Colonel Victor P. Vidal, military attache of the Spanish embassy here, officially verified in an interview reports that Spanish agents had recruited in America forces for the Moroccan campaign.

"But we stopped a month ago," he said. "Up to that time we had accepted 250 men. Hundreds of applications still are pending. Many of the recruits were of Spanish or South American descent."

The State Department declares it will have nothing to do with Americans in the Spanish forces and that they need not apply to American consular or diplomatic agents for relief in case they get into trouble.

EPSOM SALTS

LIKE LEMONADE

You can now buy real epsom salts without the awful taste and nausea, by asking your druggist for a handy package of "Epsomade Salts" which looks and acts exactly like epsom salts, because it is pure epsom salts combined with fruit derivative salts, giving it the taste of sparkling lemonade.

Take a spoonful in a glass of cold water whenever you feel bilious, headache or constipated. "Epsomade Salts" is the much talked of discovery of the American Epsom Association.

JAP PRICE GAINS GIVE TRADE HOPE

Believe Business Revival Will Start Where Depression First Occurred

By Albert Apple

New York.—Prices in Japan, after falling steadily for 18 months, are now soaring again. The advance is at a rate of about five per cent a month.

Economists are wondering if this is an indication that world business conditions are definitely on the mend.

Japan was the first country to have a break in prices. That was in March, 1920. The Japanese price peak, when it toppled, was 121 per cent higher than in 1913.

Starting in Japan, price crashing spread around the world. It reached Italy, France and England in April, 1920. A month later, American prices began falling.

Economists have reasoned that Japan, first country to have business depression, reflected in falling prices, logically would be the first country where world business improvement would show up, in rising prices.

Wholesale prices in the United States now average about 52 per cent higher than in July, 1914. This is shown by the Department of Labor's latest statistics. It is four points higher than in June.

Consumer's cost of living is 64 per cent higher than in July, 1914, according to the National Industrial Conference Board. This is a rise of two points since June.

The majority of price experts believe that the upward tendency is only temporary, that the long-range trend of prices is downward. That has been the history of prices since 1790—up 20 years, then down 30 years, irregularly, like the teeth of a saw.

Prices are rising in France and Germany. (They are falling in England.)

ASKS FREEDOM OF YANK PRISONERS

By Milton Bronner

Paris.—Three hundred American ex-soldiers are in French prisons. M. Cleveland Coxe, former American vice consul in Paris, son of the late, Bishop Cleveland Coxe, and nephew of former President Cleveland, is carrying on agitation for their liberation.

On the other hand, an American army official, stationed in Paris, declares the boys have committed offenses against the law and are deserving of punishment.

Coxe argues that most of the boys are not hardened criminals and that they can be saved for society by prompt action now, while the army officer says many of them are of the tough element and drifted into the Paris underworld after the war.

At reminds us of a story, which we tell with all respect to the late, beloved Hoosier poet of America. Riley was stopping in an Indianapolis hotel. On one occasion he superimposed of the late cheering up and had to be escorted to his room in the hotel. Just after he had been properly stowed away, a dignified gentleman walked up to the hotel clerk. "I have come to see Jim Riley," he said, "take me up." The clerk demurred and sent a bellhop to the poet's room, in a moment the boy was back with the intelligence that Riley would see no one.

"But I'm Mr. Beveridge, United States senator from Indiana and I must see him. Jim and I have been chums ever since our boyhood," the gentleman declared. So the bellhop took the senator's card and went up the second time. In a minute he came back and handed the senator his card. On the back of it was written: "Sorry Senator. Can't see you this time. Am already suffering from the effects of too much beverage, Jim."

nesses Could Have Seen Everything They Assert They Did See.

be gotten rid of somehow and Weddy got their share this would add $8,000,000 to his inheritance—quite a tidy sum.

But Weddy was never called to the witness stand to prove "darling
pop's" case.

Why?
Here was the one positive, incriminating piece of evidence that Stokes needed to prove his case.
Why did he not use it?

For some mysterious reason Stokes decided to rely on a different and much less direct way to ruin his wife's reputation and get rid of her.

It was a curious bunch of servants, negroes, private detectives and odds and ends of other people that Stokes gathered together to prove his case.
And it was a series of unpleasant revelations which greeted most of the witnesses when Mrs. Stokes's counsel, Mr. Littleton, began to ask them embarassing questions as soon as they had finished their direct testimony for Stokes.

Juliette Groeger, the nurse for the Stokes children, told in long, painstaking detail of the familiar terms on which Mrs.
Stokes's old family friend,
Hal Billig, went in and out of her room and her home.
But on cross-examination the nurse admitted that Mrs. Stokes was properly dressed and that Mrs.
Stokes's mother or sister or the children were always present whenever Billig was in the room. It also developed that Stokes had paid this woman some $2,500 or more since she had left Stokes's employ.

The next witness was another servant,
Anna Brennan. From her was developed a picture of a night visit from a mysterious "tall, dark man." She did not know the man, but she described him well enough.

But when Mrs. Stokes's attorney began to ask her questions the Brennan woman could not tell whether the "tall, dark man" she had remembered so well was smooth shaven or wore a moustache and beard.
Later on it was proved that the "tall, dark man" was Elliot Brown, room-mate at Yale of Mrs. Stokes's half-brother. But instead of being tall and dark he turned out to be blonde and medium sized. Incidentally it was drawn forth from this servant that Stokes had also been paying her regularly since she left Stokes's employ more than two years ago—another $2,500 witness.

Mrs. Stokes had asserted that from the very first year of her marriage her aged husband had set spies to watch her and that servants followed her around and reported to Stokes. This was denied by Stokes, but early in the trial a negro butler named Mosby and a chauffeur named Beard, who were put on the stand by Stokes, let out the fact that during the first year of the Stokes' marriage they had shadowed the young wife and followed her about the Summer home at Long Branch.

These two servants, the negro Mosby, and the chauffeur Beard, told a remarkable story of how an old friend of Mrs.
Stokes, a Mr. George Schroter, had visited the Long Branch cottage and had huggan and kissed the young wife. On cross-examination the embarrassing fact was developed that at the very time when Beard swore that Schroter and Mrs. Stokes were having happy times together Mrs. Stokes was in a Cincinnati hospital awaiting the birth of baby Muriel!

Another chauffeur was produced by Stokes, Valentine Kubicki, who swore to the improper conduct of Mrs. Stokes in the studio of the late artist, Samuel Rosevelt. At first this matter was placed as occurring in the Summer of 1917, and later the witness changed it to the Summer of 1916, but it was proved that Mrs. Stokes was in Denver in 1917 and in the Summer of 1916 was at the Stokes farm in Kentucky. And the partially nude painting which this chauffeur described as a portrait that Roosevelt was painting of Mrs.
Stokes was produced in court and shown to be a picture of Mrs. Stokes in a quite harmless green dress.

And then came the interesting witness,
Mrs. Nabel Matteosian. This was the MOST of those who sat in Supreme Court Justice Finch's courtroom recently and listened to the testimony in W. E. D. Stokes's suit for divorce from his wife will be much surprised if the notorious old New York multi-millionaire wins his suit. Judge Finch is reviewing the evidence and will announce his verdict shortly.

Stokes tried to prove his charges against his wife by some twenty-five witnesses, who swore to all sorts of things which they said they had seen or heard—everything except any positive testimony of improper relations with any of the dozen or more men he named as co-respondents.

The one vital, convincing and necessary thing that Stokes needed to prove his case was a witness who would admit that he had himself had guilty relations with the young wife Stokes is trying to get rid of.

If Stokes could find a man who would give this direct and positive evidence it would be worth, in law, more than all the suspicious and inferences and insinuations of the twenty-five servants and detectives and peeping neighbors.

Stokes had just such a witness—AND NEVER USED HIM!

Stokes had a young man who, he swears, confessed to the very thing that Stokes needed to prove.

Stokes named this young man in his sworn complaint when the divorce papers were first filed in court. He was listed as one of the co-respondents. A copy of his written admission was included in the sworn statement of Stokes.

This man was Stokes's own son by his first wife—W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., known in the family as "Weddy" Stokes.

But why did Papa Stokes fail to call his son Weddy to the witness stand?

Why did the hero of the famous battle of "the shooting show girls," as Mrs. Stokes cleverly phrased one of the notorious episodes in his career, who spent thousands of dollars to collect a dubious bunch of second-rate testimony, neglect to play the ace of trumps which he held in his hand in the direct, incriminating confession of his son Weddy?

This is the mystery of the Stokes divorce trial.

If the lawyers know the key to the mystery they refuse to tell it.

When Stokes filed the papers in his divorce suit several months ago he swore to this in his affidavit:

"These allegations are all made in good faith and based upon affidavits of various parties substantiating such allegations.
After being informed of the relations existing between W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., and the defendant (Mrs. Stokes), upon said deponent, W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., arriving in New York, January, 1919, deponent (Mr. Stokes) asked him if same were true, and with regret he (Weddy) admitted same. And deponent (Stokes) said it was so serious he could not at first believe it, but on the said W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., saying to the deponent, 'Well, if I put it in writing and sign my name to it you will believe it is true.' And he delivered to the deponent (Stokes) the paper annexed hereto:

"I am sorry to say I . . . with Helen at Narragansett Pier this Fall.
"W. E. D. STOKES, JR.

But when the now famous case was called to trial a few weeks ago Stokes's lawyer made the extraordinary announcement that Weddy Stokes would be withdrawn as one of the guilty co-respondents and Weddy would not appear as a witness!

What had happened?
Had Mr. Stokes, after he filed his complaint with Weddy's confession, made the unpleasant discovery that Weddy had written a letter denying any improper conduct and completely exonerating Mrs. Stokes?

Mrs. Stokes has such a letter from Weddy.

Everywhere on this page is printed a photographic facsimile of this written statement by Weddy, which is as follows, bad spelling and all:

"A Rumor has been circulated that Mrs.
W. E. D. Stokes and myself have been doing indiscreet things; which I believe is only circulated to injure my step-mother;
and for that reason, I make this declaration that no improper relations of any kind or nature, either in thought or in deed have been committed by either of us one with the other.

W. E. D. Stokes, Jr."

Did Stokes learn that Weddy had written that letter? It would be a disconcerting thing if Stokes put the young man on the stand and had him swear to the circumstances of his confession and then Mrs. Stokes's lawyer confronted him with the letter of denial.

Just this very same thing did happen with one of Stokes's witnesses during the trial. A servant who had worked for Mrs.
Stokes as nurse for the children was led through an examination by Stokes's lawyer, and told about trips Mrs. Stokes had made to the country with Dr. Billig, a cousin, and described visits of this young man to Mrs. Stokes on Sunday morning while she was in negligee in her room. The purpose of the testimony was to build an atmosphere of suspicion around the young wife and this friend, so that the inference might be drawn that worse things had happened than the testimony really showed.

But to the discomfort of Mr.
Stokes the witness was made to admit that she had written a letter very recently, as follows:

"While employed by Mrs. Stokes I saw
Mr. Hal Billig and Mrs. Stokes frequently, and on trips to Troutdale and Colorado Springs I was with them, and I never saw anything improper between them. Her character was O. K. at all times."

The written statement from the servant entirely destroyed the value of her previous testimony. It was a very unpleasant surprise for Stokes.

"Was it the truth and did you mean it as the truth when you wrote it?" persisted
Mr. Littleton, Mrs. Stokes's lawyer.

"Yes," the witness admitted. "That is true."

Did Mr. Stokes hear of the letter Weddy wrote exonerating Mrs. Stokes, and did he not relish having his son's testimony impeached by that letter? Or was it young Weddy himself who dreaded his day in court as the time of the trial approached?
Did he read in the papers the unpleasant remarks which were made to a witness in the Stillman case who had been granted favors and kindnesses by Mrs. Stillman and then turned about and bit the hand that had befriended him? Did Weddy balk when the time came?

It was at an examination before the referee in the Stillman case when Bernard Kelly was put on the witness stand to give damaging testimony against Mrs. Stillman.

Under cross-examination by Lawyer Stanchfield, counsel for Mrs. Stillman, it was brought out that both Kelly and his wife had been befriended by Mrs. Stillman, for whom both Kelly and his wife had worked for many years.

Rising from his chair and pointing a shaking finger at Kelly, Mr. Stanchfield shouted:

"Are you the contemptible cur?"
Fixing a piercing eye upon the witness and with a lip curling with contempt the lawyer continued:

"Years ago, it's said, in Ireland a traitor was hanging to every tree. How did they miss you?"

Did Weddy Stokes realize that he had to face an ordeal which would be much worse than Kelly's? And did Weddy tell "darling Pop" he couldn't stand what was surely in store for him?

Kelly was only a servant, an employee.
His betrayal was simply an act of ingratitude at most. But if young Stokes had taken the witness stand and testified to such favors at the hands of Mrs. Stokes, as his father expected him to, he would have opened the door to the bitterest denunciation and contempt which Mr. Littleton's vocabulary of scorn could, have heaped upon him.

An intimation of what would have been in store for Weddy Stokes could be gathered from the rather mild questions and remarks made when one of the earlier witnesses in the Stokes trial was on the stand.
Among the various co-respondents named by old Stokes was Dr. Hal Billig, already referred to. An effort had been made to show doubtful intimacies between Billig and Mrs. Stokes, which Billig vigorously denied. Unable to shake the statements of Dr. Billig, the lawyer for Stokes, Mr.
Smyth, said:

"If you had been intimate with Mrs.
Stokes would you admit it here?"
This was the question that gave George Schroter, a co-respondent ranking Billig in years and seniority, considerable concern, but Billig was prepared.

"Never having been in that position, I cannot tell whether I would admit or not."
With an air of astonishment, Smyth repeated the question, bringing in the feminine reputation of gentlemen where femi-nity is involved and all the rest of the formula. The young man shook his head, as though it were all new stuff to him. Seven times Smyth put the question in various forms of bluntness, but Billig each time made an apt reply. He lacked a precedent, he explained.

If he had ever been in such a position

Stokes Divorce Trial

One Witness Who Would Have Made the "Darling Pop" Confession, That Never Was Used at the Trial?

woman who said she lived in the same building as one of the correspondents, Edgar Wallace. One evening as she sat on an extension roof six feet away from Wallace's window, but on the floor above, she saw a woman in Wallace's apartment sit up on the bed, go to the dresser and fix her hair. The woman was Mrs. Stokes, she said.

The sensitive feelings of Mrs. Matteosian were so shocked that she screamed out at what she observed and Wallace in his underwear, pulled down the shade—but not before the inquisitive woman had called her husband out onto the roof to take a peep. Zenas Matteosian, the husband, told the same story as his wife.

This was a very interesting pair of witnesses.

On cross-examination Mrs. Matteosian could not remember when she had first seen Mrs. Stokes, nor could she seem to recall any other details of that memorable evening on that roof. The woman's husband said that Mrs. Stokes had worn only one garment, but on cross-examination gallantly admitted that he could not say what it was the woman was wearing, as he had looked only at her face.

Mrs. Matteosian's memory played other unfortunate tricks with her. She could remember with great vividness about the woman getting out of bed that night while she spied over the roof, but other things of great importance in the life of Mrs. Matteosian she just could not remember. She could not recall, for instance, whether her first husband had died in a private house or in a hospital; she could not give various very important dates in her life. And, finally, by photographs, mathematical drawings and architectural plans Mrs. Stokes's counsel insisted that neither Matteosian nor his wife could possibly have seen into the room at all from that perch on the roof and observed the things they said they observed.

No less interesting was a Mrs. Genevieve Lacroix D'Anquinos, who bustled up to the witness chair at a motion from Stokes's lawyer. She started by giving her occupation as an interior decorator, and was rather upset when it turned out that she had been a manicurist. She had the usual story to tell of seeing Mrs. Stokes and one of the co-respondents in a compromising position.

It was under the searching questions of Mrs. Stokes's counsel that this woman shifted her story about and brought out some illuminating facts in the D'Anquinos woman's past career. She had, for instance, brought two civil suits for $25,000 each against a cigarette manufacturer for beating her up at the Hotel Maryland, and another suit for damages against Mailard's, the Fifth avenue caterer, for serving her food that made her sick. Having established all that, Mr. Littleton then asked her how it happened that she had sworn at the Stokes's trial that she had never had a child, and yet in the damage suit had sworn that she was the mother of three children.

Mr. Littleton also drew from the woman the assertion that she was terribly shocked at seeing Mrs. Stokes and the co-respondent in their underwear. And then the lawyer put in evidence a photograph showing Mrs. D'Anquinos and two other women sitting on the back of a sofa with their skirts pulled up and their stockings rolled down.

Another witness, Martha Jones, contradicted most of the important things in Mrs. D'Anquinos's testimony.

There were other Stokes witnesses—detectives white and detectives colored, and a lawyer who admitted that he had recently been disbarred from practicing law.

For those whom Mrs. Stokes calls her husband's "paid witnesses" she feels contempt. But for the young man Weddy she feels the bitterest indignation.

When Mrs. Stokes learned that Stokes had withdrawn his son as one of the co-respondents she demanded that her lawyers should find a way to make Weddy go

*A rumor has been circulated that Mrs. W. E. D. on the stand and dare him to repeat his charges.

What Justice Finch will have to say when he makes his decision in the case now before him, no one, of course, can foretell. But what Judge Ben. B. Lindsey had to say on the occasion of Stokes's last previous legal contest with his wife is a matter of court record.

It was in 1920, after Mrs. Stokes had gone to her mother's home in Denver and taken with her the two children, that Stokes made a fight in the Juvenile Court there to prevent his wife from being given the custody of the little ones. After listening to the testimony Judge Lindsey threw out Stokes's claims, referred to his "infamous" charges against his wife and awarded the children to Mrs. Stokes.

"As the facts in this case have been disclosed by the evidence the Court is fortunately relieved of any great difficulty," said Judge Lindsey. "It seems that the respondent, W. E. D. Stokes, is now a man of about seventy years of age. His wife, as we understand it, is still under thirty, she being a young girl about twenty years of age when she married Mr. Stokes in New York City, there being a disparity of some thirty-five or forty years in their ages. The young wife and mother was for many hours on the witness stand on direct and cross-examination, in which she detailed the facts and circumstances that stand before us, that show Mr. Stokes to be and to have been a man who committed a crime against society and the young woman in question by having married her."

"The evidence shows that shortly after his marriage he was shot in a disgraceful brawl with young women at least of questionable reputation. An affair of this character seems to have occurred almost on the heels of the wedding of this young girl to this old reprobate. He seems to have been utterly abandoned in his sense of duty to his young wife and to have been utterly depraved and hopelessly profligate, to have continued to live in hotels or apartments where he carried on his relations with women in the most flagrant and shameful way, at least as far as his wife was concerned, and against her protests, against her pleadings and her entreaties."

"Her harrowing story of abuse, of cruelty and neglect convinces the Court that he never was fit to marry any decent young girl, much less to be the father of her children. Instead of making a real home he seems mostly to have made a hell for his wife during the eight years that she seems to have suffered and endured his flagrant, insulting, depraved and, as she testifies, degenerate conduct.

"Not only was she the victim of his temper, his egotism, and his brutality, but she also seems to have been at times compelled, through his conduct, to suffer from the reproaches and insults, espionage and conduct of the servants or alleged servants in his own house. Whether or not he is addicted to the continuous use of drugs is really of small consequence in the face of his openly flagrant and brutal conduct, upon what seems to have been unquestionably numerous occasions. Whether his nervous system, that seems to have been in a rather hopeless state, was due to the indecent and disreputable life that he has led or to the use of drugs, to which it is also claimed he was an addict, is of small consequence, so long as from other evidence in the case he is shown to have been utterly unfit to have been the husband of the fresh, decent, confiding young girl that he married, and by his continuous conduct toward his wife and children he is, of course, no fit and proper man to either be the father or to have the custody of the children in this case, whether temporary or permanent."

"The man's mind is undoubtedly of such a character, as shown by his notorious life, as to make it highly indecent and improper to permit him any kind of custody of these children; that it would be against their best interests and decidedly detrimental to their welfare for Mr. Stokes to have anything more to do with these children other than being compelled to support them and otherwise concede to them whatever material rights they may be entitled to from him, as much a matter of duty and justice, and it would be all that this Court, under the evidence as here presented, could think of doing."

"The Court, therefore, finds that the respondent, W. E. D. Stokes, is utterly and absolutely unfit to have the custody of these children, either temporarily, permanently or at all, not only because of the undisputed testimony in this case, showing that he is immoral, unclean and loathsome, but also because in the opinion of this Court, from all the testimony and the conduct of the respondent, Stokes himself, that he is so calloused and utterly indifferent to the welfare of his children that after submitting to the jurisdiction of a Court asked to look after their welfare, he shows no disposition to protect either the children or to assist the Court by offering one word of testimony in support of what the Court must consider are his infamous and false charges against his wife, which, if true, would for the sake of the children certainly be important in enabling the Court to determine if the mother is to have either the temporary or permanent custody of the children.

"This Court, in determining what is best to do for the interest of these little children, temporarily or permanently, is entitled to be added by all the facts it can get that will enable the Court to do that which is for their best interests; and when Mr. Stokes is so calloused both to their welfare and the duty of the Court as to offer no testimony except the depositions of witnesses to relieve him of the charge of being a dope fiend, it must conclude that he is the kind of selfish, inhuman creature that his conduct toward his wife would indicate, and that his prime purpose in this litigation is not really to want or care for these children, but to use the unsettled question of their custody as a club in the aid of some devilish design of his own."

"And since not only the circumstances and the evidence all confirm this theory, but one of the counsel for Mr. Stokes has stated openly in Court that he does not question that Mrs. Stokes is a fit and proper person to have these children; and since he is, no doubt, sure they will be safe and free from the harm and association of rouses and profligates or other improper persons while in her custody, this Court believes it has full power and authority under these circumstances to award not only the temporary but the permanent custody of both children to the mother, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, because of our duty under the laws of this State and the law, and because it is for their best interests."

In his fight in the Denver court Stokes offered no evidence to show that his wife was of bad character. Judge Lindsey took note of this fact. Why did Stokes not call his son Weddy to prove Mrs. Stokes an unfit mother?

In his laboriously constructed case in Justice Finch's court in New York Stokes tried to get his divorce largely by the testimony of the peepers, listeners and spies. But Weddy, so he says, could swear in one sentence to a bit of direct, positive criminal intimacy that would have been worth more than the inferences and suspicions and contradictory testimony of a hundred such witnesses as Stokes offered.

Why did Stokes fail to put his son Weddy on the witness stand? It is the unexplained mystery of the Stokes divorce suit.

LOOK FOR RECORD CROWD AT BATTLE WITH PRISON CITY

Briese May Be Unable to Start Against Prison City Because of Injuries

A record breaking crowd is expected at Lawrence field Saturday afternoon when Appleton hunk pits its strength and science against the formidable Waupun eleven. This will be the first game of the local high in three weeks.

The Orange and Blue team will be weakened to a certain extent because of the absence of Briese in the backfield who will have to keep out of the Saturday fray because of injuries. Zschachner, left guard, has been on the sidelines so far this week and will not be able to start in Saturday's game. The rest of the lineup will be the same as in past games.

Coach Vincent has several new plays that have been held in reserve but may be used Saturday. The team scrimmaged against the heavy Lawrence squad at Lawrence field, Wednesday and showed up to good advantage, getting away for several good gains around the college ends.

Thursday practice consisted of heavy scrimmage and review of plays. Appleton has been showing some real form in the last few weeks and is in shape for the weekend game.

Sport Views And News

George Hill showed Wednesday night that he has not lost any of the power in his trusty right arm. The way he squeezed Kara Osman when he got his headlock working was a revelation. George didn't seem to have quite as much speed as last winter, however. It is pretty early in the season and it is more than probable that he will gain more speed as he takes off weight and gets more into the game. It would be a pretty good plan, though, if the local grappler would perfect a few more holds to use against fast men. The headlock was about the only hold that was effective against Osman and some of the older heads in the game know how to keep out of that kind of a hold pretty well.

Five of the players who participated in the world series have not received their split of the coin. There is a reason for it, Judge Landis. The baseball commissioner is holding back the money pending investigation of their barnstorming activities. In the official report no names are mentioned but it is a well known fact that one of the "moneyless" players is no other than Bambino Ruth. What's a few hundred to Babe, anyhow?

The Grim Reaper chopped off two well known figures in the sport world. But Matterson and Jimmy Barrett answering the final summons. Matterson gained fame as a writer and he was rated among the best in New York. His "stuff" was read from coast to coast. A stroke of apoplexy ended Barrett's career. In his day, he was a pretty nifty outfielder and saw many years of service in the major. Not many years ago, Barrett handled the reins of the Milwaukee club.

Bill Frazier, veteran Kenosha fight promoter has quit the fistie game and is raising chickens. He claims there is more money in it. In these days of frenzied finance, the men fooling the bills of a boxing club have to move along pretty carefully to make ends meet. Even the preliminary fighters think they are entitled to the world and all for bulging a few rounds.

They are picking another soft one for Benny Leonard. Dame Rumor has it that the lightweight champion will be signed up to face Emcee Rice, English title holder in a London ring. Rice has fought several times in the U. S. A. but he never set the world afire. This match looks like soft pickings for Leonard and it should fatten his pocket book considerably.

Talk about gratitude. Miller Huggins won a pennant for the Yankees and now the New York American league fans want the can tied to him. If Huggins had won the world series it probably would be a different story.

YOUNG MENS SOCIETY FORMS BOWLING LEAGUE

Four bowling teams have been organized among the members of St. Aloisius Young Mens society of St. Joseph church. A schedule has been arranged and games will be bowled every Sunday afternoon on St. Joseph alleys.

Following are the members of each team:

Happy Would Rather Farm Than Fight

"Happy" Littleton, New Orleans middleweight ready for action, (right) Hap and his mother. (Lower) out among the cows and chickens.

"You're going to have a hard time explaining to mother if you let that other fellow wallop you tonight." This is the maternal admonition that clings to the mind of "Happy" Littleton, New Orleans candidate for the middleweight title, all the time he is battling some hard hitting opponent. And many is the time that this solicitous warning of his mother, spoken before he leaves home, has spurred "Happy" on to land a knockout before the gong sounds.

Although "Happy" has had remarkable success as a pugilist, he is one fighter who really does not like to fight and who actually has an aversion to battering his opponent.

So strong has been Littleton's dislike for fighting that it was only after much persuasion by his friends and his boyhood pal and present manager, Willie Sehart, that "Happy" was induced into the ring.

"Happy" Littleton never drinks, smokes or gambles, not even betting on his own bouts. He is never known to carouse with other boys. Not a "sissy" by any means—just a clear-minded, manly, upstanding young fellow, fond of his farm home, his mother, three brothers and a sister. He finds more enjoyment and pleasure in his home life and friends than he can in cabarets.

"I am really fond of farming," says "Happy" but I am in the fighting game because of the money there is in it. Some of my friends have criticized me for working slow at the start of a bout, for not rushing in and putting my man away, but I'll tell you frankly that I do not like to fight and I haven't the heart to punish the other fellow until he lunts me first. But I never forget what my mother says to me before I leave the house.

Littleton has never been knocked out and has lost only two decisions, one of 20 rounds with Martin Burke and the other a 15-round affair with Harry Grob. He has many victories to his credit, among them nine kayos.

Chicago.—Northwestern hopes to win their first game of the season here tomorrow when she meets the little Depauw squad from Indiana. Coach McDevitt has been using the Notre Dame formations in scrimmage during the last week and believes his eleven is in tip top condition.

Chicago.—The University of Colorado football eleven limbered up at Stagg field Friday after a thirty-six hour train haul for their game Saturday with Chicago University.

There was considerable conjecture on whether or not the change in altitude would affect the mountaineers. Milton Romney, Chicago university star who hails from Salt Lake City, said it took him two weeks to become accustomed to the Chicago climate.

So strong has been Littleton's dislike for fighting that it was only after much persuasion by his friends and his boyhood pal and present manager, Willie Sehart, that "Happy" was induced into the ring.

"Happy" Littleton never drinks, smokes or gambles, not even betting on his own bouts. He is never known to carouse with other boys. Not a "sissy" by any means—just a clear-minded, manly, upstanding young fellow, fond of his farm home, his mother, three brothers and a sister. He finds more enjoyment and pleasure in his home life and friends than he can in cabarets.

"I am really fond of farming," says "Happy" but I am in the fighting game because of the money there is in it. Some of my friends have criticized me for working slow at the start of a bout, for not rushing in and putting my man away, but I'll tell you frankly that I do not like to fight and I haven't the heart to punish the other fellow until he lunts me first. But I never forget what my mother says to me before I leave the house.

Littleton has never been knocked out and has lost only two decisions, one of 20 rounds with Martin Burke and the other a 15-round affair with Harry Grob. He has many victories to his credit, among them nine kayos.

NOT MUCH CHANCE FOR SHORE CITIES IN VALLEY LEAGUE

Majority of Magnates Favor Including Only Cities in Fox River Valley

Sheboygan and Manitowoc are pulling hard for a chance to get into the revamped Fox River League next season, according to word from the Chair city. Their hopes are bound to be blasted if the majority of magnates in the proposed new league stick to their present intentions. The isn't much chance of either Manitowoc or Sheboygan getting into the circuit unless one or more of the teams which will be offered franchises refuse to accept them.

The league which is meeting with most favor would include Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Menasha, Appleton, Kaukauna and Green Bay. The argument for including only those cities is that they are connected by concrete roads which will make it easy for fans to follow their teams to other cities and the traveling expenses of the teams will be light. If the fans can follow the teams there will be greater rivalry because of opposition rooting, and rivalry, almost as much as good baseball, is what draws crowds.

Another argument for including only cities in the Fox river valley is that this is about the wealthiest section of the United States and baseball interest is as keen here as anywhere. Manitowoc and Sheboygan are not as good baseball towns as most of the valley cities and they are so far away that there would not be the rivalry that is sure to be found between the valley cities.

All the magnates have not been seen with reference to the Sheboygan proposal but it is known that a majority are opposed to including the former Lake Shore cities in the league. Inasmuch as the majority rules it looks as if Sheboygan and Manitowoc will have to reorganize the shore league, form a new circuit or go without baseball next season.

TOMMY GIBBONS MIGHTY SENSITIVE ABOUT AGE

Minneapolis.—Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul heavyweight championship contender, is as sensitive about his age as a prima donna. The record books give his age as 22, which, he says, is incorrect.

"My brother Mike, is only 33," Tom explained, "and I'm not even his next younger brother. There was another one between us, now dead."

"I am 23 years old, having been born in 1893 instead of 1870, as stated in the record books."

Gibbons, who is matched to box Georges Carpentier for Tex Rickard, recently scored his seventeenth knockout.

SOUTHERN TEAMS BATTLE EAST ON EASTERN GRIDS

Harvard, Penn State and Princeton in Intersectional Battles

New York.—Sturdiest plants of the south's new football crop will try life for a day Saturday in eastern soil.

Away from the warm, balmy sun of their home fields, three of the "best" products of the Dixie section will come to the crisp, cool clime of the east hoping to outblow a trio of the fall's finest.

The south against the east furnishes the big feature of a schedule that has reached the stage of real class. Some of the best football of the year should result from:

Harvard and Centre.

Georgia Tech. and Penn State and Princeton and Virginia.

The sensational playin' Colonels of Danville catch the Harvard eleven at a moment when the Crimson eleven is not just exactly fit for a hard game. Casualties from the hard Penn State game last Saturday have left a disabled squad on the hands of Coach Bob Fisher.

Centre approaches with a heavier team, a bigger reserve power and a better coached line than Harvard saw last year. The Colonels, instead of the bluster and noise which accompanied their 1920 invasion, are warning only with a trite—"lookout."

Harvard, however, is favored to win by the eastern critics.

Penn State and Georgia Tech. will give New York her first glimpse of a real big intersectional game. The Atlanta school has one of the best teams in the south and Penn State hasn't seen a superior in the east. Both have powerful, well organized teams. The "breaks of the game" may decide it.

With Garrity and Snively back in the game, Virginia has not a promise outlook with Princeton. The Tigers, however, are taking the game lightly and overconfidence has been one of the worst sins of Princeton all season.

FORESTER CAGERS GET FIRST WORKOUT

Ten aspiring young athletes reported for practice at the first workout for prospective members of the Catholic Order of Foresters basketball team in St. Joseph hall gymnasium Thursday evening. About an hour was spent in scrimmage followed by brief practice in catching and throwing the ball.

The Foresters have the making of a good team and expect to keep up hard work to be in shape for the opening of the basketball season in December. In Kansas, Hollenbach, Verbrink, Bauer and O'Hanlon they have men of considerable experience and speed and a few weeks of practice will put them in good shape. Several other young men showed considerable skill in the cage game. It will not be difficult to pick a strong squad. Games will be arranged with industrial teams and with C. O. F. teams in other cities.

BADGERS FACE HARD TEST WITH GOPHERS

Crowd of 25,000 is Expected at Homecoming Football Game in Madison

Madison.—Wisconsin's chances for a conference football championship are at stake Saturday, when the Badger eleven tackles their old rivals, Minnesota, here in the homecoming game on Randall field. The game will decide whether Wisconsin remains in the championship race with Iowa, Chicago, and Ohio or is placed on the list of also-rans.

While Coach Richards' men are preparing for their homecoming battle, thousands of Badger alumni are pouring into Madison to witness the game and enjoy the weekend of entertainment.

Madison is dressed in gala array to receive them. Everyone of the 21,500 tickets for the game have been sold, according to the university athletic department. Temporary seating arrangements are making it possible for a record crowd of 25,000 to pack into Camp Randall stadium.

Every Badger, with the exception of Quarterback Gibson, is in the best of condition for tomorrow's contest. Coach Richards' pilot it is believed, will be able to enter the game if his services are needed. Gilt, who handled the team well after Gibson's injury at Illinois, will start the game. Oss, Brown and Johnson, Minnesota stars who have been on the hospital list have been reporting for practice this week and it is possible that Oss the Gophers' backfield mainstay will be able to appear Saturday.

The October Sale The Last Sale Day is Devoted to a New Collection of Coats at $55. — $58. — $65.

More notable arrivals from our New York purchase—coats of the highest quality, that we can sell at the three prices above. These coats came in yesterday and have been held for tomorrow's selling—making the last day, the best day of the entire October Sale.

As in the case of the other coats sold this week—these garments are not "sale" models, nor are there any undesirable "reduced" ones here. Every coat is BRAND NEW — just arrived from the best fashion creators of New York. Every coat could easily be sold for a great deal more than these prices—but we bought them at a bargain, and sell them tomorrow in the same way.

Besides the coats below are other models at these prices—some are straight line, others have the much desired blouse back. Normandy cloth is used, each garment is full silk lined and many are trimmed with lovely silk embroidery. The quality of the Australian opossum used is especially noticeable for it is a fine soft gray.

At $55 At this price comes a straight line coat of Normandy cloth with a collar of soft gray Australian Opossum. The back is trimmed with rows of silk harness stitching and silk arrow heads. There is a full range of misses' and women's sizes. Choice of Havy, Sorrento blue and brown.

At $58 A junior coat has an all-around blouse and collar and cuffs of Australian Opossum. Finished with a narrow belt. This model is to be had in Sorrento blue, brown and navy. The lines are especially good for the young and slender figure.

At $65 A blouse coat is hand embroidered in a rich design. The half shawl collar of Australian opossum gives a rich effect. Handsomely lined. —Second Floor.

Further Reductions in Hats Trimmed Dress Models

This extraordinarily low price range includes some handsome hats that are remarkable values in tomorrow's sale. Velvet models in small and large shapes and a variety of trimmings make up the selection. $3.75 $5 $7.50

Banded Sailors These smart sailors are made of a fine hatters plush in navy, brown and black. They are unusual values at $6

Children's Hats Beavers A very good grade of beavers in chick shapes for children's wear are to be had in a complete color range at this price. $3

Felt Hats The remaining lot of children's felt hats has been reduced to this low price for tomorrow's selling. The lot is limited. $1.75

Angora Tams A new headgear for young folks came in this morning. Angora tams in a wide range of colors at only $2 —Second Floor
